SARRAUT AND CABINET HOLD ON TILL JUNE 1

Leftist Government Will Not Control France Till New Chamber Meets

Much Speculation On Monetary Plans

Associated Press
Paris, May 5.—The Sarraut government will follow the precedent set by previous defeated French ministries and remain in office until the new Chamber of Deputies meets on June 1, it was reported following a cabinet meeting today.

The cabinet meeting was called to consider the domestic and international situation, particularly in the light of the leftist victory in the general election which ended with the second balloting last Sunday.

The cabinet also studied France's financial situation.

NO EARLY EMBARGO

Tonight Marcel Regner, Minister of Finance, denied there would be a gold embargo which might lead to devaluation of the franc.

"We will take no special measures against gold while I am here," he said.

The possibility of the government trying to restrict the foreign exchange market likewise was discarded.

NEW POLICY AWAITED

As to what the monetary policy of the incoming government would be usually well-informed quarters expressed varying opinions. Some sources predicted a devaluation policy, while friends of Leon Blum, leader of the dominant Socialist Party, believed the left leaders had agreed on an anti-devaluation policy.

They named Edouard Daladier, leader of the Radical Socialist Party, and Maurice Thorez, leader of the regular Communists, as concurring in this agreement.

Alderman P. R. Brown Advances Further Reductions to Keep Rate Down

While prominent local business men and taxpayers who appeared before the City Council yesterday to protest any increase in the taxation of land, today planned to meet Hon. The taxpayers and business men intend to request the Provincial Government to provide Victoria with a grant, tentatively set at $305,000 to meet budgetary requirements for this year in the city.

Lumber Workers Out on Strike

Approximately 1,000 Men in Camps and Mills Down Tools

Canadian Press
Vancouver, May 5.—Loggers and sawmill workers in widely separated parts of Vancouver Island and British Columbia's lower mainland went out on strike today as the deadline passed for negotiations with employers for higher wages and union recognition.

"Approximately 1,300 men refused to resume work this morning," Arne Johnston, secretary of the Lumber and Sawmill Workers' Industrial Union, said.

"Nearly 400 men struck at camps three and six of the Industrial Sawmills Ltd. at Cowichan Lake; between 200 and 300 men quit work at the Lake Logging Company, and five shingle mills at North Vancouver and Fort Moody are out," Johnston said.

Employees of the M.R. King Lumber Company, North Vancouver, who went out yesterday, met last night and voted seventy to twenty to return to work. The mill resumed operations today.

R. V. Stuart, secretary of the British Columbia Loggers' Association, said less than 1,000 men, about 3 per cent of the employees in the industry, had heeded the union's call for a strike which was issued following a meeting of the British Columbia District Council of Lumber and Sawmill workers here yesterday.

People in War-torn Addis Ababa See Italian Troops Arrive in Motor Trucks

By ISIDORE NEBENZAHL
Havas News Agency Correspondent

Addis Ababa, May 5.—Rome's victorious troops raised the banner of Fascism over this pillaged capital today.

The vanguard of the forces under Marshal Pietro Badoglio rumbled in trucks past the British Legation shortly after 4 p.m. local time (5 a.m. P.S.T.) and headed for the centre of the city.

The entry ended a campaign of conquest which began seven months ago and evolved in a series of smashing victories for Italy which left the Ethiopian empire a disorganized ruin.

Arrival of the Italian troops was expected to relieve the grave situation which had existed here since Emperor Haile Selassie fled his country last Saturday.

A dispatch from Rome said Marshal Pietro Badoglio had informed his government all precautions had been taken to bring order to the Ethiopian capital after three days of terror and bloodshed.

The motorized columns of Blackshirts, Askaris and other contingents, which smashed Emperor Haile Selassie's forces in a series of victories near Lake Ashangi and in the Tembien Mountains, streamed into the ancient capital after a difficult advance along the winding "Imperial Highway" and another route leading southwestward from Dessale.

Shock native Italian troops under General Alessandro Pirzio-Biroli had (Turn to Page 2, Col. 2)

LOAN COUNCIL MOVE AWAITED

Alberta Government Wishes Clear View of Ottawa's New Plan Before Deciding

Canadian Press
Edmonton, May 5.—Premier Albert Brown announced today that his government had given no consideration yet to possible endorsement of the Dominion-Provincial Loan Council plan as revised by federal Finance Minister Charles Dunning.

"There are no new loans falling due immediately and so we shall not need to rush into any new plan," he said. "We haven't had any word from Ottawa yet, anyway."

As revised, the Loan Council terms would permit a province to issue securities domestically even if the Loan Council refused permission to seek loans nationally or in the world market. This plan, it is believed, may remove Mr. Albert's objection to the former plan—surrender of provincial autonomy on credit.

SEEK GRANT TO BALANCE BUDGET

City Council and Influential Body of Taxpayers Appeal to Finance Minister to Secure Sum Needed For City's Estimates

To assure themselves of the good faith of the provincial government in its promise to assist municipalities this year, a delegation composed of the City Council and an influential body of taxpayers will interview Hon. John Hart, Minister of Finance, tomorrow morning.

Decision to request the interview was reached after the taxpayers, appearing in a delegation at yesterday's meeting of the City Council in estimates, had emphasized the impossibility of the city carrying on its financing if it raised the mill rate.

The taxpayers, for whom James Patman, F. E. Winslow, John Worthington, and R. H. R. Kar spoke, expressed their confidence in the good faith of the government.

They were told by Alderman P. R. Brown the city had to find $303,000 in order to hold the mill rate at the same level maintained last year.

Mr. Patman and other spokesmen urged the necessity of avoiding an increase in the burden placed upon property. They called attention to the provincial government's promise and, under question by Alderman P. R. Brown, who held the chair at the meeting, approved the suggestion that the $303,000 required be placed on the revenue side of the budget, suggesting the government would help the city to that extent. PREMIER MUSSOLINI

SELASSIE MAY GO TO SWITZERLAND

Associated Press
Alexandria, Egypt, May 5.—Everett A. Colson, former adviser to Emperor Haile Selassie, said today the fugitive Ethiopian ruler, who owns a villa at Vevey, Switzerland, probably would go there to live in permanent exile.

"I announce to the Italian people and to the world that peace is re-established," he said.

"It is not without emotion and not without pride that after seven months of fierce hostilities I pronounce this great word," the Premier said. "But it is strictly necessary for me to add that it is our peace and a Roman peace which is expressed in this simple, irrevocable, definitive phrase: 'Ethiopia is Italian.'"

Il Duce declared the chiefs remaining in Ethiopia "no longer count" as negotiators.

"MOST SOLEMN" HOUR
"Italy," said Mussolini, "has lived many memorable hours until that of today, which certainly is one of the most solemn."

Recalling how last October 2 he said he did not wish to make the Ethiopian question a European question, Mussolini declared:

"We now are ready to defend our victory with the same inextinguishable decision with which we achieved it."

Il Duce said that in this way "we believe we will be interpreting the will of the combatants, those who died fighting and those whose memories are engraved in the hearts of Italians."

NEWS SPREAD RAPIDLY
News of the Italian entry into the ancient capital of Ethiopia swept the country like wildfire.

"We Are Ready to Defend Our Victory With Same Inexorable Decision With Which We Achieved It," Says Mussolini to Great Cheering Throng in Rome as All Towns and Cities in Italy Rejoice Over Occupation of Addis Ababa by Badoglio's Forces

Associated Press
Rome, May 5.—Premier Mussolini declared tonight: "The war is over and Ethiopia is Italian."

He made his declaration to half the population of Italy assembled throughout the nation in an "Adunata"—an official mobilization of the public.

The populace was assembled in celebration of the fall of Addis Ababa to Italian troops under the command of Marshal Pietro Badoglio.

Il Duce spoke from a blue bannered balcony in the Piazza Venezia while thousands of subjects gathered in the Piazza below him.

Mussolini announced Marshal Badoglio had entered the Ethiopian capital at the head of his men at 4 p.m. (whether this hour was Rome or Addis Ababa time was not stated).

The Italian leader was unable to speak for the first ten minutes after he had appeared, so tremendous was the ovation accorded him.

"I announce to the Italian people and to the world that peace is re-established," he said.

British Are Urging Peace Discussions

Reported London Government Asking Italy Deal With League Committee in Establishing New Conditions in Ethiopia

Canadian Press from Havas
London, May 5.—The Havas News Agency says it was authoritatively learned in London today that the British government is requesting the Italian government that peace negotiations to end the East Africa war begin immediately.

Havas said it learned the British request asked the negotiations be conducted with the League of Nations representing Ethiopia.

Havas said its information was from a usually reliable source, but that it could not immediately be confirmed officially.

It was understood the British Embassy in Rome had been instructed to advise the Italian government. That London was aware of the turn of events in the last few days indicated the authority of Emperor Haile Selassie was crushed. That Britain wished to see the East African war with Ethiopia ended. That negotiations to this end should begin immediately. (Turn to Page 2, Col. 4)

Ethiopian Emperor Takes Jewels and Bullion Into Exile in Palestine

Associated Press
Djibouti, French Somaliland, May 5.—Emperor Haile Selassie went into exile laden with rich treasures.

When the Ethiopian monarch sailed from here aboard the British cruiser Enterprise yesterday for Palestine, his possessions included the imperial family jewels and many cases of gold bullion, gold coins and silver Maria Theresa thalers.

Even six automobiles were listed among the imperial belongings.

The Emperor was reported to have stopped at Djibouti, while coming here by railway from Addis Ababa over the week-end, and to have removed all cash from the treasury and customs house there. (Turn to Page 2, Col. 5)

HIGH PRAISE FOR HAILE SELASSIE

Associated Press
London, May 5.—The London Times, in a comment reflecting the British attitude toward Haile Selassie, self-exiled ruler of Ethiopia, said today:

"The world today sees in the Emperor—frail but indomitable, firing a machine gun while bombs dropped round him in the heat of day—a man worthy representative of humanity than his conqueror, mouthing self-praise in the Roman himself."

STAFF RETURNS TO LEGATION

U.S. Group in Addis Ababa, Sheltered By British, Re-occupies Building

Associated Press
Washington, May 5.—The State Department was notified today that the United States legation in Addis Ababa had been re-occupied by its own officials and that all of its contents were undamaged.

Earlier news had come that Cornelius Van H. Rogers, the minister, and the little band who had stayed to defend the United States legation, had been safely evacuated.

Word the defenders had left the building, which for four days had been menaced by Ethiopian bandits bent on loot and murder, was flashed here by way of London.

No details were available beyond the terse cable: "U.S. legation safely evacuated." (Turn to Page 2, Col. 2)

TIE CONTRACTS LOOKED INTO

Hon. P. J. Veniot Complains Some C.N.R. Contracts Farmed Out at Figures

Canadian Press
Ottawa, May 5.—Complaining that the contracts had been given to hangers-on, proprietors of poolrooms and hardware merchants who "farmed them out" to other people at five cents a tie, Hon. P. J. Veniot, Liberal, Gloucester, N.B., today examined R. F. Vaughan, vice-president in charge of purchases of the Canadian National Railway when the Commons railway and shipping committee met.

MANY APPLICATIONS

Mr. Vaughan said small tie contracts caused the railway system its greatest deal of trouble. There were approximately 4,000 applications a year for the contracts. Railway officials did everything possible to see that contracts went to people who were able to fill them satisfactorily.

Mr. Veniot asserted he had made representations on behalf of certain people which were not investigated and the people had got no contract.

"We get a lot of letters from members of Parliament recommending people for the contracts," said Mr. Vaughan, indicating a large pile. "We do our best, but sometimes we make mistakes."

RECOMMENDATIONS

A. A. Heaps, C.C.F., Winnipeg North, asked if Mr. Veniot had actually recommended anybody for a tie contract. He did not think this should be done by a member of Parliament. "A number of members of the committee took exception to this," Mr. Veniot said. "I have not made any request that a specific contract be awarded. I have written that one man who applied for a contract was well qualified to get it. The railway had replied the man was a barber, and no contract could be given him."

The man, said Mr. Veniot, had been a barber some time before, but had given it up. He was well equipped to been practically in sight of the capital for the last twenty-four hours, but had delayed their entry to form a junction with the motorized column of 3,000 trucks bearing about 17,000 men which followed slightly in the rear.

The shock troops of Askaris had followed a route branching to the east of Desays from Warrs Hallu down to Lico. The bulk of the northern column had followed the Imperial Highway which joins the other road at Lico and stretches westward toward Addis Ababa.

A number of swollen streams were the chief obstacle which met the forces as they marched. A sharp wind blew across the high plateau, sweeping rain-soaked flocks.

DAYS OF PILLAGE

The flight of Emperor Haile Selassie last week to Djibouti unlocked the passions of the wild tribesmen. For three days rioting, pillaging and fighting raged in the city. An undetermined number of foreigners were killed. Most of the city's finest buildings were wrecked and robbed.

For those three days hundreds of foreigners crouched in the legends, fighting off marauding native mobs in a manner reminiscent of the Boer Rebellion.

London, May 5.—Sir Sidney Barton, British minister to Ethiopia, reported to the Foreign Office today that a large force of Italian troops in motor trucks entered Addis Ababa this afternoon.

Foreigners hoped the Italians would be able to restore order at once.

Sir Sidney's brief message, transmitted by wireless, stated large Italian forces had passed the British Legation.

Concerning the Italian arrival, the British minister stated:

"A large force of Italian troops and lorries has been entering Addis Ababa past the British Legation since 4 p.m. local time (5 a.m. P.S.T.)."

STAFF RETURNS TO LEGATION

It was assumed Minister Engert, his wife and other occupants of the poorly fortified legation had been taken to the stout British compound three miles across Addis Ababa.

BACK HOME

Then came news that the United States officials had recaptured their legation, the move apparently following the arrival of Italian troops in Addis Ababa.

This morning the United States Government had received assurances from the Italian Government that lives and property of foreigners in Addis Ababa would be protected according to the rules of war as soon as Italian forces should occupy the city.

I think it would be far better to reduce our grants, etc. in order to keep within our revenue as far as possible," Alderman Brown said. "Therefore, I would far rather recommend to the estimates committee still further reductions rather than anticipate a grant of $305,000 from the Government this year in view of what Hon. Mr. Hart has said or increase our receipts beyond all expectations. In this way we would be fair to all concerned and meet the problem facing us today rather than postpone it until next year."

SUGGESTED CUTS

The reductions I have in mind would be as follows:

	Grant	Reduce to	Saving
Publicity Bureau	$20,000	$5,000	$15,000
Other hospitals	49,500	14,000	35,500

Aldermanic indemnities	4,320	nil	4,320

EXTRA AMOUNTS

"While I am short approximately $118,000 of the required amount to hold the tax rate down to last year's level, I am quite willing to scrutinize our estimates to try and find a further $58,000 along the same lines indicated and anticipate a grant from the government of say $60,000 to make up the difference."

Washington Senator Urges Quota From Canada Be Sent in Quarters

Associated Press
Washington, May 5.—Senator H. T. Bone, Democrat, Washington State, said he would introduce legislation designed to prevent the red cedar shingle import quota allowed under the new Canada-United States reciprocal trade treaty from being "dumped" on the domestic market at one time.

Under the treaty, the United States reserves the right to limit imports of Canadian shingles to a yearly quota of 25 per cent of the combined total of domestic shipments and the imports during the preceding half year.

Bone said the treaty provisions permit Canadian producers to disrupt the domestic market by shipping their quota into the United States at the end of the quota year.

"Domestic producers want a more orderly application of the quota," Bone said. "My amendment probably will provide for breaking up the 25 per cent quota into quarterly quotas to be fixed by executive order during the life of the treaty."

The senator has conferred with President Roosevelt on the application of the quota principle. The President appeared interested, but made no commitment, Bone said.

Nations figures. In 1929 Canada had 3.71 per cent of the world's export trade, 1929, 3.48; 1931, 3.29; 1932, 3.18; 1933, 3.29; 1934, 3.59; 1935, 4.32. This showed an actual increase in 1934 over 1933.

Of the world's import trade Canada had 3.5 per cent in 1929; 3.47 in 1930; 2.91 in 1931; 2.73 in 1932; 2.28 in 1933; 2.0 in 1934, and 2.71 in 1935.

In general trade, Canada had 8.8 per cent of the world total in 1929, 8.45 in 1930, 3.09 in 1931, 3.24 in 1932, 2.94 in 1933, 3.27 in 1934 and 3.49 in 1935.

BALANCE OF TRADE

During the last few years the government had modified to a great extent the visible balance of Canadian trade. The commodity balance of trade, exclusive of gold, had been running steadily against Canada before the Conservatives came into office in 1930, he said.

In 1928 there was an unfavorable balance of $17,000,000, and in 1931, the first year the Conservatives were in office, it had decreased to $10,000,000. By 1932 it had changed into a favorable balance of $49,000,000.

The favorable balance then increased to $136,000,000 in 1933, $146,000,000 in 1934 and $192,000,000 in 1935.

RAISED TARIFF

"It has been said we raised the tariff," said Mr. Bennett. "We certainly did. We took the steps that were necessary to safeguard the integrity of this country."

Canada at that time was faced with competition from disorganized industries in the United States, seeking market for their surplus, he said. Every increase in the tariff did not necessarily mean increase in prices to the consumer.

MANUFACTURERS' PLEDGES

Undertakings were obtained from manufacturers not to increase prices, and were observed to the letter," said Mr. Bennett. The boot and shoe industry had been enabled to give steady employment and the price of shoes had actually been reduced.

The same thing occurred in the agricultural implement industry. The manufacturers had more than five years to their undertaking for they had refrained from increasing prices when there were increases in the United States.

"There was no rise in prices to the Canadian farmer until the United States agreement was signed when, for a time, they were released from their obligations," Mr. Bennett said.

Implement prices in Canada and the United States were now about on a parity and in some cases Canadian prices were lower, he added.

PRIVILEGES FOR TOURISTS

Succeeding ministers of finance would have liked to establish the $100 tariff exemption for tourists, but dared not take the risk, said Mr. Bennett. It should be realized now what the risk was.

No fewer than $2,540,000 people left Canada every year as travelers or tourists, to the United States or across the sea. Every one of these people was now entitled to bring back $100 worth of goods from any favored nation such as the United States, Great Britain or France. If

LAST RITES FOR D. B. PLUNKETT

Ottawa, May 5.—A funeral service was held here yesterday evening for the late D'Arcy Britton Plunkett. The Conservative member of the House of Commons for Victoria, died Sunday.

After the service the body was taken to Orillia, Ont., his birthplace, for burial.

The service was attended by Conservative Leader Bennett, former colleagues in the House of Commons, members of the Senate and friends.

R. J. Plunkett of Orillia, a brother, attended the service and accompanied the body to Orillia. Harry J. Barber, Conservative member for Fraser Valley, B.C., and Mr. Plunkett's close friend, also went to Orillia.

Halifax, May 5.—Smiling a cheery good-bye to Halifax friends, Dr. D. E. Robertson boarded a private car attached to the Ocean Limited today and, accompanied by Mrs. Robertson and his physician, Dr. Ian MacDonald, began his return journey to Toronto.

"The Nova Scotia people have been wonderful to me. . . I can't thank them enough," the doctor, a victor over a ten-day imprisonment in the Moose River Gold Mine, told reporters just before the train pulled out.

His expressions of gratitude were echoed by Mrs. Robertson, who hurried to Moose River when she first heard of the mine collapse which trapped her husband, Alfred Scadding and Herman Magill, Toronto barrister, who died in the mine.

Scadding was making a satisfactory recovery today in a Halifax hospital.

"That Britain recognizes that Ethiopia is at present non-existent and therefore a League of Nations committee should be commissioned to represent Ethiopia in such negotiations."

Associated Press

Rome, May 5.—Ethiopia is no longer a member of the League of Nations and military occupation means political possession, informed sources asserted today as Fascist troops neared Addis Ababa.

The consensus of newspaper editorials reflecting government opinion emphasized four points:

1. Ethiopia no longer is a member of the League and does not exist as a separate state;

2. No direct negotiations therefore will be carried on with Ethiopia;

3. Peace will be made in Ethiopia not Geneva which must no longer interest itself in the Ethiopian problem;

4. Italy's military occupation of Ethiopian territory means political possession, but with the recognition of the rights of other powers.

Today's editorials gave substance to the prediction in military circles that Marshal Pietro Badoglio, on arriving in Addis Ababa, would declare the total annexation of Ethiopia in the name of King Victor Emmanuel.

Mr. Henderson said he would work far away from the cave-in area, containing mining activity to the 300 and 300-foot levels. There were thirty men at Moose River who would be deprived of a living unless the mine continued operation, he said.

Halifax, May 5.—Smiling a cheery good-bye to Halifax friends, Dr. D. E. Robertson boarded a private car attached to the Ocean Limited today and, accompanied by Mrs. Robertson and his physician, Dr. Ian MacDonald, began his return journey to Toronto.

"The Nova Scotia people have been wonderful to me. . . I can't thank them enough," the doctor, a victor over a ten-day imprisonment in the Moose River Gold Mine, told reporters just before the train pulled out.

His expressions of gratitude were echoed by Mrs. Robertson, who hurried to Moose River when she first heard of the mine collapse which trapped her husband, Alfred Scadding and Herman Magill, Toronto barrister, who died in the mine.

Scadding was making a satisfactory recovery today in a Halifax hospital.

Prices fluctuated on the Bourse again today with the rather quiet and irregular market showing a tendency to heaviness. Government 3 per cent bonds lost 70 centimes within an hour. Stock of the Banque de Paris lost 33 francs from yesterday's closing of 804.

Financial circles said that among the measures under consideration for the cabinet was control of foreign exchange operations and strict watch over trading in futures to block speculators.

PROGRAMME OUTLINED

The following programme for the next government was suggested by friends of M. Blum:

Virtual nationalization of the Bank of France; measures controlling speculation and newspapers to prevent the spreading of panic; nationalization of war industries; overhauling of the tax system and military appropriations in the next budget; dissolution of the supposedly armed semi-military leagues; abandonment of sanctions against Italy, and insistence on mutual assistance or disarmament in negotiations with Germany.

"The Socialists," commented L'Ouvre yesterday, "have the next word." Discussing the leftist victory in the French general election last Sunday, the paper added:

"France in her horror of Fascism has returned a Chamber of Deputies where the Socialists, flanked by an imposing Communist group, will be the most numerous of the majority (left groups)."

"We proudly accept the mandate of the great French democracy," wrote Paul Faure, in the Socialist newspaper Populaire.

Radio Protest From Montreal

Commons Committee Hears Musicians Complain of Treatment By Commission

Ottawa, May 5.—Protests against treatment of the Montreal Musicians' Federation by the Canadian Radio Commission, presented today before the special commons committee on broadcasting by S. B. Dunlop, head of the federation, developed into a general discussion of the efficiency of national unions as compared with international.

Mr. Dunlop presented a brief in which it was claimed the commission had violated an agreement given during the musicians' strike in 1934 to co-operate with the Montreal federation, to pay union rates for rehearsals and performances and to use at least 60 per cent of the union members employed before the general strike.

WANT MORE CO-OPERATION

That undertaking which ended the strike had been carried out generally in Canada except in Montreal, and even in Montreal the employment undertakings had been fulfilled. But the witness complained the agreement had been violated with respect to pay and rehearsal facilities and co-operation generally.

W. M. Murdoch, representing the Canadian Federation, an affiliate of the American Federation, was launched into a discussion of the attempt in Canada to form a national body independent of the international, when Cameron McIntosh, Liberal, North Battleford, Sask., questioned him on comparative value of the two types of union.

James S. Woodworth, C.C.F. leader, objected to this aspect of the questioning and declared if the witness was to give evidence in favor of the international he would demand that evidence be obtained from those representing all-Canadian unions.

EXPENSE ACCOUNTS

At yesterday afternoon's sitting evidence on expense accounts was variously described by committee members as "astounding, shocking and staggering."

The name of Thomas Maher, former vice-chairman of the commission who resigned in 1934, was mentioned in connection with expense accounts and telephone calls, and that of L. Bushnell, programme director. It was indicated special attention would be given this phase at later hearings.

Italian Troops Now In Addis Ababa

Screaming sirens summoned the people to hear Il Duce's jubilant message.

MANY "VIVAS"

Thunderous cries of "Viva Il Duce, Viva Il Re!" re-echoed through the streets of Rome and its big squares. The Palazzo Venezia was surrounded by a sea of swarming men, women and children huddled in by long lines of troops, blackshirts and royal carabinieri.

News of the fall of Addis Ababa filled with overflowing the cup of rejoicing which Marshal Badoglio's armed victories brought to Italy. Millions gathered all over Italy to hear the broadcast voice of Il Duce calling on his people to rejoice in victory.

A similar "adunata" occurred last October 2 when the Fascist dictator informed his people hostilities had

ALLOT SUM TO AID HOSPITAL

City Sets Aside $500 For St. Joseph's For Use If Given Power

In the belief provincial legislation will be amended this year to give the city legal permission to assist St. Joseph's Hospital by a financial grant, the City Council, sitting in estimates committee yesterday, added another $500 to its special budget item for hospitals other than the Jubilee. The amount was raised from $1,100 to $1,600.

That action was taken after C. E. Wilson, speaking on behalf of the board of directors of St. Joseph's Hospital, had asked for financial consideration for that hospital and requested the council to seek from the government new legislation enabling the city to assist the hospital by means of a special city grant.

Mr. Wilson spoke briefly on the history of steps advanced along those lines.

He reviewed the hospitalization question as it concerned the action of the provincial government in throwing the hospital costs of indigents upon the municipalities in 1926.

Mr. Wilson cited the case of New Westminster, which contributed to the upkeep of its hospital through the medium of a special grant.

St. Joseph's had assumed bad debts amounting to $22,000 a year through the care of indigents who, he claimed, would otherwise be thrown on to the Jubilee Hospital, and whose bills would have to be paid by the city, at least in part.

EMERGENCY CASES ASSISTED.—In reply to Alderman J. D. Hunter, Mr. Wilson admitted the city paid $2.50 a day toward the costs of emergency indigent cases.

Costs to St. Joseph's for indigents in 1935 amounted to approximately $20,000, Mr. Wilson said. The government had done nothing toward altering current legislation to permit the council to make a grant, he added.

"I still take the stand that I'm not prepared to ask the government to amend the act when they have the power to amend it without our request," Alderman P. R. Brown said. Expecting the city to seek the change was just passing the buck, he added.

Alderman James Adam moved the city set aside a sum in the budget to aid St. Joseph's Hospital, provided such a policy was supported by the Union of B.C. Municipalities, with the authorization of the provincial government.

Mayor Leeming outlined the action taken regarding amendment of the Municipal Act to allow the city to make the donation.

The council last year had declined to take the initiative on the matter, he said.

WOULD SUPPORT MOVE.—"If we go before the Union of B.C. Municipalities asking for power to give the grant to St. Joseph's, the Union would say ok, because the majority of members would not have to pay," the mayor said. On the other hand, he could not see the member municipalities voting to raise the government per diem grant to hospitals if they, the municipalities, had to help pay it, he said.

He was prepared to put a motion to increase the grant to hospitals other than the Jubilee by $500 so the city could aid St. Joseph's if new legislation were brought in this year, the mayor said. The vote was put and carried and the budget item for other hospitals was raised from $8,100 to $8,600.

Emphatic opposition to any concessions toward St. Joseph's Hospital was voiced in a letter from the Loyal Orange Lodge read later in the meeting.

Hear Case For Hand Sweeping

Arguments For and Against Hand Labor Methods Voiced at Council Meeting

Arguments for and against the return to hand sweeping of city streets were heard at yesterday's meeting of the City Council in estimates. The matter was brought up when Captain Burgess J. Gadsden of Sunshine Inn urged the council to consider the return to the old type of cleaning in order to assist aged men to regain employment.

Captain Gadsden outlined the serious position in which old men were left through the depressed state of the times generally. He hoped the city would consider their re-engagement in active work through hand sweeping the streets.

Any money they were paid in wages would be circulated in the city, he said. He did not believe if the relief saving that would result from putting the men back to work were taken into consideration, that the costs of hand sweeping would be a great deal higher than that of motorized sweeping.

A report was read covering the relative costs of motor and hand sweeping.

Ald. James Adam asked how a greater saving was made last year than when the Elgin sweeper was new.

"Because the machine is not sweeping," the mayor said.

Ald. Andrew McGavin noted the Elgin sweeper was a United States machine and the money paid for it went out of town. If the hand labor method was used the money would be kept in town, circulated by the men who were "dying to work." The present sweeper was broken down and swept just now and then, he claimed.

Ald. Walter Loney said it had been his duty to bring in a report on costs. He wanted to see as many men working as possible. The sweeper in its present state could not be used in the outside districts, he said.

The Elgin sweeper would sweep twenty-five miles in five hours. Twenty-five men would be required to cover the same distance in one day.

The streets in the city would have to be swept at night, he said, and he feared some sweepers might be killed by night drivers.

CANNOT USE TOKEN TAX

Ratepayers Told Suggested
Revenue System Beyond
City's Powers

Establishment of a token or sales tax was beyond the power of the city and the province alike, representatives of the Victoria Ratepayers' Association were told when they appeared before the City Council in estimates yesterday.

Should the province secure legislation to establish such a form of taxation and should it be passed on to the city at a later date, it could not be used to meet the budgetary requirements of the city this year, Alderman P. R. Brown, chairman of the meeting, said.

James Parfitt, speaking for the Victoria Ratepayers' Association, said his body viewed with alarm the possible increase in taxation. The home owners could not stand a higher levy and many of them were being forced to leave town to try to get work.

Mr. Parfitt advanced the suggestion that a token tax be instituted to supply funds to assist unemployment. The matter, he believed, should be taken up with the Union of British Columbia Municipalities. He claimed certain people, not ratepayers, were not providing revenue for the city, although the enjoyed city services.

Mayor Leeming informed Mr. Parfitt the city was continually trying to secure new taxation, and the province had not the power itself to institute a sales tax.

Alderman P. R. Brown, chairman, stated the suggestion could not assist the city in this year's rate.

HEAR EXPERT ON LOGGING

Selective Cutting Would Not Harm Sooke Watershed,
City Council Told

Selective logging would not detract from the value of the Sooke watershed as a watershed, Gordon Godwin, expert in the modern method of cutting timber, told members of the City Council at their meeting yesterday.

Mr. Godwin, a former Victorian, was asked to give his views on the proposal to log the Sooke watershed and presented a clear, concise explanation which apparently convinced the council such operations would not be harmful.

His remarks supported the opinion of G. M. Irwin, city engineer and water commissioner who reported in similar vein on the question after inspecting operations in Oregon. Mr. Irwin presented several suggestions to be observed in the cutting of timber in the watershed area.

Mayor Leeming directed the matter to the water committee to set upon with consideration being given to the special conditions.

GODWIN HEARD
On the suggestion of Alderman Andrew McGavin, chairman of the water board, the council asked Mr. Godwin, present at the meeting, for his views.

The terrain at Sooke was better adapted for selective logging than the territory in which he had been operating in Oregon, Mr. Godwin said. It would not be very expensive logging and the timber cutting would have no appreciable effect on rainfall, he added. The advantage of selective logging as opposed to the old high-lead system lay in its protection of the young growth of smaller trees which were not of marketable value.

In point of number of trees, less than 10 per cent of the standing timber in the Sooke watershed would be taken out, Mr. Godwin said. More skilled workmen were required for the operations as they had to be experts in order to protect young growth in felling the larger trees.

FIVE YEAR PLAN
He was under the impression, Mr. Godwin said, that the party seeking logging rights at the watershed intended to spread his operations over a period of five years.

Mr. Godwin was asked to meet the water board at a later date to discuss in greater detail the logging situation as it affected the Sooke area.

The council adopted the report of the water committee allowing the cheaper domestic water rates from May 15 to September 1, and passed a recommendation of the chairman for the purchase of a second-hand Delco lighting system for the Goldstream Park tearooms.

MILD BRUSH ON RATE CUT

Ald. T. W. Hawkins Tells Council Fight Helped to Get Reduction

A mild brush between Alderman T. W. Hawkins, chairman of the special committee on insurance, and Alderman P. R. Brown, over the cause of the recent fire rate reduction for the city, was declared a draw by Mayor Leeming at yesterday's meeting of the City Council.

Following announcement of the reduction in letters from D. M. McGregor, manager of the fire branch, British Columbia Insurance Underwriters' Association, and Russell Ker of Ker & Stephenson, Alderman Hawkins said he believed the rate cut had been hastened by his fight in the council.

He had been all alone on his stand for low rating companies in the council when the blanket insurance scheme was broached. But like Dempsey after the Firpo fight, he found "the victory doubly sweet" when he figured he gained a point through rate reduction. He believed his fight for the lower rate had been instrumental in effecting the cut, he said.

Alderman Brown said he wished to "take no gingerbread" from Alderman Hawkins, but stated the rate reduction had been under way for some time and would have been brought into effect without the council fight.

Alderman Hawkins countered by saying the reduction had been under way for years, but action had at last been secured.

The mayor gave his verdict as a draw.

The allotment of insurance, as drawn up by the special committee, was approved by the council.

STADIUM PLAN FOR ESQUIMALT

Victoria Athletic Club Requests Use of Lots From Council

A proposal from the Victoria Athletic Club for the erection of a 300-seat stadium in Esquimalt was heard by the Esquimalt Council last night, and referred to the chief of police for report.

In a letter to the council Thomas E. Drysdale requested the use of two lots at the corner of Fraser Street and Esquimalt Road. Appearing in person at the meeting, Mr. Drysdale explained that the finances for the stadium were already arranged, and work would start immediately if the council would give its approval.

The stadium was intended primarily for boxing and wrestling matches, said Mr. Drysdale. He found more interest in these sports in Esquimalt than in the city. But it would also be available for hand concerts and similar purposes.

In reply to a question from the council, Mr. Drysdale said the club would be prepared to erect the stadium at any other point if the council preferred.

REQUEST CUTS BE RESTORED

Civic Employees' Federation
Appears Before Council on Wage Question

A sympathetic hearing was given delegates for the Civic Employees' Federation when they appeared before the City Council in estimates committee yesterday to request consideration of salary restoration in part for the cuts they had sustained during 1931 and 1932.

But the delegation was told by Alderman P. R. Brown, chairman of the meeting, the special estimates committee had considered the suggestion and intended to make no recommendation for blanket restoration of all or part of the cuts.

The employees' delegates gained the floor after two other delegations had been heard and the financial difficulties facing the city had been emphasized.

PRESENTS CASE
Sergeant A. H. Bishop, first spokesman for the delegation, remarked upon the predicament in which he found himself after hearing previous discussion. He appeared, he said, to ask for partial restoration of salaries, cut 15 per cent in 1931 and 1932. Last year 25 per cent of the basic salary had been restored, he noted. Big firms, the B.C. Electric among them, and the Vancouver civil staffs, had restored in part salaries, he said. A restoration of cuts in part would give more money to city merchants, Sergeant Bishop said. He noted the civic employees' activities in helping to popularize the city, before declaring the federation had the interests of the city wholly at heart.

R. T. Brindle gave further details of the civic pay restoration in Vancouver, particularly as it affected the fire department.

Mayor Leeming asked D. A. MacDonald for costs of restoring salaries. The city fully appreciated the attitude and support of the federation members and recognized the loyalty of their service, the mayor said.

It would cost $13,700 to restore civic staff salaries by 5 per cent without considering schools, Mr. MacDonald said.

Alderman P. R. Brown said the special estimates committee had not approved a general increase, but had favored special consideration for some cases.

Akron, O., May 5.—Twenty-two thousand factory employees of the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. and the B. F. Goodrich Co. received news of wage increases yesterday on the heels of an industry-wide price advance.

Twenty thousand Firestone factory workers receive 5 to 10 per cent advances immediately, while the Goodrich Company did not disclose the size of pay boosts to its 12,000 employees.

Edwards, a cousin of the accused brothers, told the court his evidence at the first trial at Vernon in June, 1934, was false; induced by threats and a bribe of $500 from law officers. This allegation had been categorically denied, Mr. Sloan told the Lordships.

SAYS EVIDENCE CHANGED
"It is an interesting commentary when we consider how he happened to change evidence from that given at the Vernon trial," said Mr. Sloan. "Edwards, a crown witness, and a cripple, had been released from jail while Henry Brown and Tommy Andrews, two other crown witnesses, were held as material witnesses."

"Yet, three weeks after being released, Edwards had asked permission to re-enter jail, giving as an excuse, his wish to be with Brown and Andrews. Since his discharge, however, he had been talking with the chief of the Spence's Bridge reserve, and with Stuart Henderson and Henry Castillon, defence counsel."

"Mr. Henderson asks this court to believe Edwards, who was corroborated only in a slight degree by Joseph George, a fourth brother, also accused of murder, but who was acquitted at Vancouver," Mr. Sloan went on. "He asks that you discredit Brown and Andrews, yet they are corroborated by three other Indian witnesses, Dr. J. J. Gillis and Dr. Irving, Corporal Archie Carmichael of the Provincial Police, Inspector Vance of the Vancouver Police and a great mass of exhibits. Brown and Andrews are corroborated in the most minute detail."

CATIGATES TWO
"On the other hand, Edwards is the jail for the official announcement."

O'Donnell's wife, who was in a hospital after the birth of a child when the crime was committed, spent the night outside the jail with relatives.

O'Donnell was hanged exactly six months from the day the body of the twenty-year-old stenographer was found in the Gerrard Street east ravine. The Don Jail is on the same street, about two miles west of the murder spot.

O'Donnell wrote farewell letters to his relatives and counsel, thanking them for their efforts to free him.

WE ARE AT OUR BEST

PERHAPS IT IS THE COMPARISON with a hard winter, or with conditions prevailing these days in most parts of the world, but somehow Victoria seems to us to be more beautiful now than in any previous spring.

Surely the fruit trees never bore such prodigious loads of blossom before. The experts may deny it, the gardener may moan about his losses from frost in the winter, but the gardens of Victoria seem to produce richer bloom than ever. With the tulips, the shrubs, the rock plants, the fine new greenery of spring, the young leaves not yet toughened by contact with the world, May is our loveliest month, and the tourists, who come at midsummer never really see us at our best.

The countryside, like one vast garden, also seems to have put forth a special effort this year. The dogwoods are loaded down with bloom, like little white stars caught in their branches. The lilacs are going to seed now, but the canas are welling up like a blue tide among the yellow buttercups, and the unpretentious pale flowers of the oaks hang like green lace from the trees. In the deeper woods our succulent island growth is fairly surging up—shaggy brown coils of sword ferns, delicate green of maidenhair, juicy triple leaves and white faces of trilliums.

Somewhat all has come on with a sudden rush, as if winter had ceased on one day and spring had commenced on the next. The growth and blossom of the whole season have been crowded into a fortnight or so, and nature has gone on an innocent debauch after the rigors of a hard winter. Whatever the experts may say, we like it. The winter was hard, but this was worth waiting for.

WAR—TWO POINTS OF VIEW

IN AN OLD COUNTRY NEWSPAPER which reached the exchange table of The Times the other day there appeared two arguments directed in the main, but from various points of view, against war, with special reference to what is going on at the present time. One was from a woman and the other from a man. The woman was one Gillian Bradley, and the man was none other than the Bishop of London, Dr. Winnington Ingram, who is well known in Victoria.

The woman says, in her letter to the editor of the newspaper in question:

Thank you for saying that which we want everyone to understand: We will not have a war. We women have much to say in this matter. First, we do not want our men taken from us and sent hither and thither to be killed.

Secondly, we do not want our homes wrecked; no to surrender our babies and ourselves to the unholy havoc of bombs and gas.

Thirdly, we do not want our men (if any return) to be murderers; and to kill intentionally is murder, whether you call it war or what you will.

And lastly, because we do not want these things ourselves, neither do we want our men to bring these miseries to other women—a heart is a heart, and love is love, no matter where it is or under what flag.

Dr. Ingram said in St. Paul's Cathedral that "Christ would be murdered again if he returned to earth today." We quote a part of the Bishop's deliverance as follows:

Let Him stand up in Italy and denounce the use of poison gas upon defenceless barbarians, and He would be at once imprisoned, and probably shot as a traitor. Let Him stand in the Rhine country and denounce hatred and suspicion between nations, and He would probably be shot by both sides.

I preached from this pulpit on Easter Day, 1918, when the British army had been forced to retire, and defeat seemed more than possible. The present Easter has the gloomiest outlook in all the eighteen years since.

One Christian nation is attacking another Christian nation, the use, against all signed conventions, of the most terrible poison gas being met with the most revolting mutilations in revenge, if the Egyptian Red Cross unit is to be believed. In Europe, two more nations distrust each other, and the whole atmosphere is filled with another poison gas of mutual hatred and suspicion; while our own country, anxious to be friends with both, is meeting with the usual fate of mediators.

Concluding his discourse, Dr. Ingram voiced the view that the future of the Christian religion was not too cheery a prospect. Russia had altogether repudiated it, although no power could really crush the Russian spirit of worship. In Germany it was changed into a national religion, of which the God was Germany; and whatever the causes of the tumult in Spain, nothing could excuse the pillaging and burning of monasteries and cathedrals.

Bradley and Ingram have put the so-called civilized world "on the spot." When one thinks of the poverty—in all its hideous aspects—which exists today, the money which is being spent on the instruments of destruction, is it any wonder that there is unrest in the world?

THE NEW FRONTIER

IN THESE DAYS OF SHARP CONDEMNATION of technological processes which are accused of increasing unemployment, it is interesting to analyze the defence of a leading research expert, Charles F. Kettering.

Mr. Kettering, recently named the outstanding research engineer in the United States, disagrees with the critics who feel technological advances and research are used mainly to reduce man-hours of labor. Instead, he points out, technological processes have developed new products, new projects, and new types of industry which go far toward putting idle men and women to work. He cites, for example, the automobile industry, which he asserts has employed many more persons than it has deprived of work.

ONE RELIEF LOAN LIQUIDATED

IN HIS BUDGET SPEECH, MR. Dunning listed the depression loans advanced by the Federal Government to tide over the stringencies of the last few years. His statement showed a total of $116,500,000 to the debit of the four western provinces. Absent from the depression loan list in this budget was the $60,000,000 bank guarantee made three years ago by Ottawa for the benefit of the C.P.R. Mr. Dunning was able to announce the liquidation of this liability without loss to the Federal Government. This announcement was one of the bright spots in his budget speech.

The fact that the C.P.R. is now once more able to stand on its financial feet without such government support, is definite evidence that we are getting out of the depression. It is also proof of the sound condition of Canada's greatest private corporation, whose credit without government backing is now again good in the financial centres. It is a matter for congratulations all round—to President Beatty and his directors for making it possible, and to Mr. Dunning and the taxpayers of Canada on the removal of such a liability.

IN ONE MAN'S LIFE

CHIEF DAVID OF THE SONGHEES INDIANS, who died last week, remembered well the founding of Fort Victoria in 1843. He saw Sir James Douglas land here with his little band of Hudson's Bay men and build their village on the waterfront opposite the Songhees Reserve. He saw this village grow into a town, and big ships, driven by strange engines, come into the harbor. Finally the day came when the white man's village had spread so far that the Indians had to move away with compensation in white man's money.

All this in one man's lifetime—the wilderness turned into this modern city which travellers call one of the beauty spots of the world, the Indian's hunting grounds changed into a garden!

The rapid growth of this western country, of course, is a commonplace and the dates of our history are known to every school boy. Yet how seldom we remember it in the confusions and disappointments of these times.

We are impatient of our progress. We are desperate for quick solutions and easy ways out. We ask ourselves how long we must wait for better things.

It is good to remember how far we have come in one old Indian's lifetime. Children in Victoria now, who live to be old men, will see changes as great as those witnessed by Chief David, and issues which seem to rock our present civilization will be as dim in the memory as old Fort Victoria.

EDWARD ANSWERS THE PHONE

THIS IS HOW A UNITED STATES widely-read commentator tells the story of King Edward answering the telephone:

"England still is very much agog over the news that King Edward answered the royal telephone the other day.

"It seems that a Britisher called the palace to ascertain the right procedure to follow in contacting the King and, to his great amazement, found himself talking to the young monarch. 'Oh, yes,' said Edward, 'I answer the telephone every chance I get.'"

"All of which reminds us that a little of this kindly democracy might be used with great success in America.

"What executive of importance is there today who can be reached on his own telephone? Instead, the round of secretaries, appointments, and buck-passing encountered to reach one of these 'big shots' is enough to discourage the most redoubtable.

"What this country needs, perhaps, is the King Edward telephone system—and the sooner, the better."

It may be added that what all countries need is less snobbery—a better development of the gift of understanding and capacity to think.

The only difference between Hon. John Hart signing a cheque for $3,500,000 and our signing one for the same amount is that the Finance Minister's will be cashed and ours would be returned with "NSF" adorning its face.

Now that Italy has grabbed Ethiopia, what is she going to do with it? More important still, what will be her next move—and its consequences? Meanwhile, by the way, what does King Victor Emmanuel think about all this? We presume he is still on the throne.

As Hon. John Hart said the other day, British Columbia is not out of the economic woods; but, under his astute management of her finances, she already has her feet on a rung of the ladder which is far removed from the pit of the depression.

MILEAGE OF MOTOR TIRES
The St. Thomas Times-Journal

Cotton has been more responsible than rubber in recent years for the increase in the mileage of motor tires from 3,000 to 20,000, according to a cotton expert. In a heavy motor tire three or four times the amount of cotton is being used compared with twenty years ago.

AUSTRALIAN-AMERICAN TRADE
The Baltimore Sun

Members of the Australian Government are considering measures that would adversely affect American sales in that Dominion. In the debate in the Federal Parliament this week government spokesmen pointed in justification of such action to "the alarming growth of imports from the United States, which is proving a grave menace to trade with Britain and other good customer countries and also to Australian export industries." It was said in the course of the debate that the United States will not negotiate a reciprocal trade agreement with Australia because it now has a favorable balance of trade with that country and so would have little to gain from a reciprocal arrangement. If this is true, it reveals a serious flaw in our reciprocity policy. It would indicate that we are seeking advantages only in those markets where we are now weak and are not interested in extending benefits to countries that are among our good customers. In a word, the emphasis is entirely on the export trade.

STEALING TULIPS

To the Editor:—From year to year we are exhorted to "clean-up, paint-up," and do many other things which will make our city look attractive to visitors. I have tried to do my best, my garden, at least to my amateurish eye, looked rather nice last week. But last Saturday night some vandal "pinched" some of my very special tulips. But not content with this, he also returned on Sunday night and made a fairly good clearing job of it. It is difficult to understand the mentality of a person who would interpret his or her civic responsibility in this fashion. I am waiting for the next "visitor."

FIRE INSURANCE RATES

To the Editor:—According to press reports, the public is expected to believe that the attitude of the Board of Fire Underwriters toward the city of Victoria has suddenly changed, and they now intend giving, after a long period, the insuring public a slight reduction on the fire insurance premiums.

Three years ago, the Ratepayers' Association, under the able presidency of Mr. Higgins, started a fight to secure cheaper fire insurance for the city, especially in view of the fact that the Board of Fire Underwriters had forced the ratepayers to shoulder heavy expenses for the installation of salt-water mains and expensive fire-fighting equipment. The association, under successive presidents, has continued the fight, and in the case of the recent allotment of civic insurance, fought hard to restrain the council from any premature action which would commit the ratepayers to unnecessary expense.

Evidence has proved how sensible the action of the Ratepayers' Association was, for the board companies, in face of this opposition, have reduced their rates from $1.00 per $100 to $1.45, and then from $1.45 to $1.31. These reductions are entirely due to the efforts of the Ratepayers' Association, and not to any gratuitous gesture on the part of the board companies.

Even the lower rates now quoted by the board companies are much too high. This is proved by the fact that the lowest bid for civic insurance was 56 cents per $100 for three years, and the non-board dwelling rate for a three-year period is 55 cents. Many ratepayers are alarmed by the attitude of our City Fathers in not availing themselves of the lowest possible rate, and thus saving the ratepayers several thousands of dollars.

SOCIAL CREDIT

To the Editor:—One hesitates to enter the controversial lists with such distinguished knights of the pen as Mr. Bruce Hutchison and Mrs. A. B. Saunders. But if a humble proletarian may be permitted, I should like to break a lance in support of the latter, Mr. Hutchison, in that delightful, inconsequential column of his, chides Mr. Saunders somewhat acridly for his repeated attacks on Social Credit. He further suggests that despite all the earnest efforts of scientists, economists and political leaders, the world will continue to grate in one "mad swirling" meaningless course.

While I sincerely admire, from the purely artistic point of view, the brilliancy of Mr. Hutchison's unfailing comprehensive cynicism, I sometimes wonder just how much "sense" ends of this description, contribute to that confusion of thought to which this "mad swirl" is attributable! As far as capitalism is concerned, this is undoubtedly true; it is already in its death dance. But the world is a big place with a lot of people in it and there are other places than suburbia or even the hinterland of B.C. And although Col. Beak and "the little girl next door" may speak with authority for the sylvan retreats of Saanich, I am inclined, at any rate occasionally, to consider other opinions.

Mr. Saunders determinedly deals only in demonstrable truth. May he long continue so to do. In these days of fog, mysticism and hypocrisy, truth is like a fresh breeze from the hills. It was, I think, John Wesley who when asked why he reiterated his message 100 times, replied "because ninety-nine times is not enough!"

With regard to the Social Credit phantasmagoria, this is startlingly true today. For if repetition is the bone of columnistic contention surely the pain must be awarded to the Gulls, the Jakes, the Turtles, et al! Mr. Saunders has with infinite patience and relentless logic, grimly scraped away the coat of glamorous varnish with which the Social Credit seek to cover up the decaying structure of capitalism. They frantically endeavour to garnish the effects, willfully ignoring the cause; seek vainly to overcome the gap between production and consumption by erecting a bridge of fictitious money, based on the quicksand of illusory finance. They are the wreckers of today, and will, like Wecker, be eventually called in by the ruling powers in a despairing effort to stem the ever-rising tide of discontent. Like Wecker, too, they will be ultimately overwhelmed in the inevitable flood.

It is a thousand pities these well-meaning and estimable gentlemen, who have such a keen grasp of the sadly stupid effects of injustice, entirely fail to realize that it is the injustice itself which must be removed. Mr. Saunders, on the other hand, is one of those very rare people whose keen intellect and world-wide experience has enabled him to overcome his hereditary environment. His sense of justice rebels at the fallacious system which gives him comfort and ease at the expense of his fellow man. Materially he has nothing to gain, whilst facing a certain measure of social obloquy in sticking to his economic guns.

I often disagree with his methods

LATE FORESTER TO BE HONORED

Tree to Memory of P. Z. Caverhill Will Be Planted in Stanley Park

The late P. Z. Caverhill, former chief forester of British Columbia, and one of the leading forestry experts of Canada, will be honored by the Junior Forest Wardens of the Canadian Forestry Association next Friday.

At a ceremony in Stanley Park, Vancouver, a tree will be planted to his memory by the junior wardens. Hon. A. Wells Gray, Minister of Lands, will officiate. The tree will be planted alongside a British Columbia tree planted five years ago.

Mr. Caverhill took a keen interest in Stanley Park and gave valuable advice about it to the Vancouver Parks Board on more than one occasion. It was therefore thought fitting that a tree to his memory should be planted here.

TRIBUTE PAID LATE MEMBER

Memorial Service For D. B. Plunkett at Cathedral Tomorrow

Prominent Conservatives of Victoria today paid tribute to the late D. B. Plunkett, M.P. for this constituency, who died in Ottawa Sunday.

Arrangements were completed meanwhile for a memorial service in Christ Church Cathedral tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Hugh Allan is in charge. Rt. Rev. C. de V. Schofield, Bishop of Columbia, and Very Rev. C. E. Quinlan, Dean of Columbia, will officiate. The singing will include the Twenty-third Psalm and the hymns "O God Our Help in Ages Past" and "Jesus Lives."

A standing vote of condolence was passed by the executive of the Victorian Conservative Association at a special meeting. All social arrangements by branches of the organization have been canceled.

Tribute to the late member were paid by Hon. S. P. Toimie, whose place in the House of Commons Mr. Plunkett took, and by E. W. Maynard, president of the Victoria Conservative Association.

TRIBUTES

Mr. Toimie said: "It is with deep regret that I heard of the passing of Mr. Plunkett, who always held the interests of Victoria at heart, and who applied himself diligently and industriously to advance every representation placed in his hands by this city. A strong and clean-cut supporter of the Conservative party at all times, Mr. Plunkett had a complete grasp of affairs at Ottawa, and Victoria suffers a very real loss at his death. Not only was he a good citizen, but he was an excellent representative at the national capital. I desire to extend my sincere sympathy to his relatives."

Mr. Maynard said: "The news of Mr. Plunkett's passing has been received with feelings of profound sorrow by all Conservatives, and I am sure, by all citizens of Victoria. Mr. Plunkett was a loyal supporter of Conservative principles and a conscientious representative of this city. He gave unselfishly of his time and services to his constituents, and in so doing did not consider either his personal desire or his health."

DR. ROBERTSON'S STORY OF MINE ENTOMBMENT

Dramatic Narrative of Moose River Gold Mine Disaster, Dictated by Toronto Surgeon From His Bed in Halifax General Hospital, Graphically Describes Experiences of Victims Imprisoned Underground While Heroic Rescue Efforts Were Being Made

In yesterday's chapter of his personal story of the Moose River mine entombment, Dr. D. E. Robertson told how he and his two companions heartened by the faint sounds of blasting overhead, built a small fire to warm themselves and in the hope that the smoke, seeping through, to the surface, would tell the outside world they were still alive, despite their growing personal discomfort.

By DR. D. E. ROBERTSON
(World Copyright by The Red Cross of Canada. Distributed by The Toronto Star Newspaper Service)

Halifax (By Airmail)—The blasting continued. We could hear automatic hammers or drills running, and they sounded like machine guns in the far distance. About the third night they seemed to be pointing right in our direction. And for twelve hours there was steady drilling and after there were about sixteen to thirty shots fired, some rocks were dislodged and fell down the shaft.

We took this as a good sign and I think that it was at about this stage that we began to realize that a serious endeavor was being made on the surface and that there was a chance of our being rescued.

Believing this, the matter of time was not of first importance, so long as it was within ten days or so. We thought that we had kept time properly, that we had identified each day an night, but as time went on our stoves became increasingly more uncomfortable, and the incessant drip of water in the mine generally, and in particular on us wherever we lay, became of extreme annoyance. It seemed impossible to get oneself in any position where one was not exposed to the large drops of water falling from the roof.

Alf would make regular trips to the opening of the landing shaft and hurl down the shaft a block of wood or rock, always coming back with the report that he could not hear a splash. At times he pounded the pipes going up the shaft, but he was complaining more and more of the insensibility in his legs. Both Magill and Alf complained of pain around their joints and groins and knees.

In this wise the days passed until Saturday, or what we thought was Saturday. To my surprise, I myself seemed to be in excellent physical condition, apart from my indigestion and numbness in the feet. My chest was quite clear, and although subject to wet and cold for almost a week, and having tremendous chills at very frequent intervals, I found I was in first class shape.

COMPLAINED OF STOMACH PAIN

Alf, apart from his numbness and joint pains, was in good shape also. Neither of us had a cough. Magill, however, did not appear to be so rugged and suddenly, in the middle of Saturday afternoon, he sat upright and cried to me that he had a dreadful pain in his stomach. It was excruciating.

Passing my arm around him I felt his abdomen, and it was absolutely rigid. I could make nothing of the diagnosis, but we continued to lie all of us on our left sides. I had my arm around Magill, in this way trying to control and restrain him. About this time we thought it advisable, on account of the falling rock, to leave our place and go into the face of the east crosscut—the rocks were falling from blast.

We made a wretched trip through this badly choked passage and spent a few hours in this position. The blasting having come to an end we made our way back to the landing stage. By this time it had become quite apparent to me that Magill had pneumonia in his left lung. His pulse was almost twice as fast as mine and his breathing was also twice as fast as mine.

The mine was full of noise, but one seemed to stand out from the other. It seemed to be a boring sound, a sound as if a rotary instrument was working. We discussed this but had no explanation for it.

RED LIGHT BURSTS FORTH

Presently a red light burst forth in the shaft just below our level, and there was no difficulty in seeing that there was some smoke. There was an intense red glow which lighted the whole place. We immediately thought that fire had started, perhaps from some dynamite.

Alf sprang up and went over to the shaft. We passed him a cup of water with which he attempted to deluge the fire. He accomplished this. We then discussed the significance of the fire, but could attribute no reasonable explanation.

We were then in for about six or eight hours of peculiar occurrences. The compressed air was turned on in one of the pipes and it was blown for a long period of time. We thought it was an endeavor of the engineering force to get an air pump working, and we took heart to the extent that we thought the work above was progressing and that they had hopes of reaching us. At least we took it to mean that they knew we were alive.

After the compressed air had been blown for a period, a whistle was blown. Following another discussion of this phenomenon we decided that they were in some fashion trying to signal us, and with the return to the beating of the pipes we presently heard a voice shout "Hello."

We went to the landing stage, Alf got down the ladder and found that the voice was coming from an opening where the fire had made two appearances, and through this opening, which proved to be the diamond drill opening made to penetrate to the space where we lay, we could converse directly with the people above.

TELLS OF MAGILL'S DEATH

Through this I was able almost immediately to speak to my wife. Mrs. Magill called her husband, but he was too weak to move from where he lay. We learned of the activity on the surface and were heartened and thought we would be rescued. We asked for candles and food. A rubber tube was passed down; in fact an ordinary garden hose. This had some candles, some matches wrapped in cellophane. Some small vials containing chocolate and what not, was treasure trove.

Alf got soaking wet in getting these supplies from the drill hole. He passed them to me and I carried them up the ladder. We dragged the hose over to where we lay. We lighted our candles and the situation looked very much improved. We tried the soup which was poured down the hose, but neither Magill nor I was able to keep it down. Alf, I think, got some benefit from it. We were extravagant with our candles for the next few hours, and during this time Magill was getting very much worse. In another ten hours he had an extremely high fever with very labored breathing.

He sat up, demanding a drink of water, which was given to him. He fell back and died in a few minutes. Alf did not get the significance of this until I told him Magill was dead, and I was again filled with admiration for Alf—his ability to meet dreadful situations gave me the greatest confidence.

HOSE CUT OFF COMMUNICATION
We stayed as we were until an interval had passed, sufficiently long to make sure that Magill was actually dead. We then lighted our candles and by herculean efforts moved the body into the north cut, where we placed it reverently on a board.

We then returned to our place of rest, and I slept for a considerable period. When I awakened and talked with Alf, we tried to get them to take the hose out of the opening. While they gave us food, which personally was of no use to me, and little more to Alf, it cut off communication, and we could not hear what was shouted down the hole. We therefore had the tube removed and presently we got instructions that they were dropping a telephone down to us and to get it. The telephone was dropped down to us in a long iron tube.

Alf got down the ladder, crawled over the ore chute, got this piece of iron, passed it back to me and we carried it up to the platform and to our place of refuge. At the same time they sent us down a dozen candles. We lighted our candles and unpacked the telephone—which was very cunningly and cleverly done up in the iron tubing, protected by tape. Having got our hands as dry as possible we undid the apparatus and found a little microphone, no larger than an index finger. Removing a finger stall, one spoke into the microphone, and we had established an accurate and definite communication with the surface.

This, I consider, was the one feature which allowed us to consider any further stay with equanimity. HANDS WERE NUMB

Alf found that his brother-in-law was on the surface. I found I could speak to Mrs. Robertson and Charlie Ivey. Through this telephone we were able to ask questions, which were answered by a man above, who shouted "No," if for "No," and "Yes," if for "Yes." The development of the telephone was only half complete, had we known it. On several occasions the crew on the surface tried to get us to go to the diamond drill hole to get other things, one of which, we subsequently learned, was the other part of the telephone, which would allow of a two-way conversation.

I think that both Alf and I had determined by this time that for no reason whatsoever would we again make the attempt of the ladder, as the danger was altogether too great

FAITH CULTIST KILLED BY SNAKE

Associated Press
Barrow, Fla., May 5.—Demonstrations with poisonous reptiles were banned here today following the death of Alfred D. Weaver, thirty-five-year-old faith cultist who was bitten by a large diamond-back rattlesnake during a revival meeting Sunday night.
A coroner's jury decided Weaver died "by the bite of a rattlesnake through his own carelessness," but a fellow member of his congregation said the man had been "ready to lay down his life for the Lord."

George W. Hensley, evangelist head of the group to which Weaver belonged, told the coroner's jury "probably 100" persons had been bitten during his "faith demonstrations," but that Weaver was the first to die.

for us in our weakened and clumsy condition. From the beginning we all had difficulty with our hands. They were continuously wet. The skin of the palms was roughened like crocodile skin. Our hands were cut and bruised so that it made it exceedingly difficult for us to use them. After the telephone came down, the situation was so much improved and when aid was promised as so shortly, it appeared we would be able to carry on without any drastic changes.
Alf's feet had continued to increase in pain and numbness. He was forced to make the effort of cutting open his boots. As a matter of fact, he took each off and threw away a pair of socks, and we applied his boots. In addition to this difficulty, for a period of forty-eight or fifty-six hours he experienced agonizing joint pains in one hip and then the other. They were such as to make it almost impossible for him to lie in one position more than ten or fifteen minutes.

Having had pains of similar nature, I was able to do nothing more than sympathize with him.

I could only assure him they would disappear, as they actually did, and I congratulate myself on what a stout companion I had.
(In tomorrow's chapter, Dr. Robertson's story progresses to the "dream stage," the period wherein the writer and his heroic companion would die off in fitful dreams imagine child is grown up?

The IMPERIAL FAMILY INCOME policy more than doubles the PROTECTION

● If protection for a young and growing family is your great need, here is a plan designed for you especially.

The Imperial Family Income Policy provides in case of your death for 12% of the face value of the policy to be paid to your family every year until your youngest child is grown up.

For example a $10,000 policy on this plan would provide $100 a month ($1,200 a year) continuously until the youngest child is grown up. At that time it would also pay its full face value, $10,000 to your widow, or other beneficiary.

Note the extra service this policy offers—more than twice as much income is guaranteed as the money could earn in these days of low interest rates. Yet the principal sum is left intact. Further—should you live—the policy could provide YOU with a welcome income for your own years of retirement.

Farmers Arrangement Act Deals Affect $51,127,476 Throughout Canada

Ottawa, May 5.—Since the Farmers' Creditors Arrangement Act became operative eighteen months ago a total of 11,011 settlements, involving $51,127,476 of debt, have been effected, according to the first report of the committee in charge, tabled in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon. Reductions actually effected totaled $15,341,430, with an annual interest saving of $1,238,718.

The report sets forth that 10,091 farmers submitted proposals, and 11,011 settlements were made, with an average annual interest saving to individual debtors of $151.23.

"In addition to such value as may be placed on the work accomplished in the comparatively short period," says the report, "there is a noticeable getting-together throughout Canada of the debtors and their creditors outside the purview of this act, but attributable to the legislation, with a view to friendly adjustment of their problems by voluntary arrangement; and it is a matter of record that many thousands of debtors, who are being effected without recourse to the official receivers and without cost to the government."

Settlements effected under the act, by the provinces, include: Ontario, 1,261; Manitoba, 875; Saskatchewan, 1,125; Alberta, 1,541; and British Columbia, eighty-six.

In addition to this total of 6,116 voluntary settlements accounted for 4,893, making a total of 11,011.

Indications of boards being congested is noted in the report, which records that one board has had 2,967 cases before it. Of these a total of 1,281 have been arranged.

Identification Bureau Plan

Voluntary Registrations by Citizens Is Scheme of Vancouver Police

Vancouver, May 5.—Vancouver is to have a civil bureau of identification, with small cards, encased in celluloid holders bearing each person's photograph, signature and the print of the index finger, according to Superintendent H. AT JUBILEE CONVENTION

Local King's Daughters Attending Provincial Gathering on Mainland

The golden jubilee convention of the British Columbia branch of The King's Daughters is being held today and tomorrow in New Westminster, Victoria being represented by Mrs. L. H. Hardie, Mrs. R. A. Playfair, Mrs. W. Russell and Mrs. A. M. Perry, all of the provincial executive, and the following delegates from local circles: Mesdames Watson, Brown, McElfrish, Sharp, Stewart, Haynes, Kipling, Anderson and the Misses Morley, Humphries, Morris, Kilsby and Hughes.

Mrs. F. G. Lewis, as provincial president, is taking the chair during the sessions, which are being held in Olivet Baptist Church, Queen's Avenue and Seventh Street, commencing at 10:30 o'clock, and representatives from the twenty-five British Columbia circles will attend and report on activities.

As district president of New Westminster, Mrs. W. W. Collings gave the address of welcome to the visiting districts, which will include Cowichan, Victoria, Surrey and Vancouver. A luncheon was served in the afternoon, Miss Margaret S. Ross, international council member of K.D., and Dominion secretary, gave an outline of the history of the provincial, while the various district heads gave the individual histories.

Late afternoon a reception and tea-musical was held at the home of Mrs. C. A. Welsh, 228 West Third Street. Election of officers will take place on Wednesday, and Mrs. C. A. Welsh will give an address entitled "Opportunity," prior to luncheon. A memorial consecration service will be conducted by Mrs. J. W. Barwick, and a sacred pageant will be presented by the New Westminster circles. A motor drive and tea at the home of Mrs. J. A. Cusance, Rochester Road, Burnaby, will conclude the session.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDER

MRS. ELDER TELLS HOW TO CONVERT 13-POUND BABY TO THREE-MEAL ROUTINE

Baby's own behavior almost always dictates the change from one schedule to another. The baby who is reluctant to eat five times a day will have a sharper appetite for only four meals, and the same holds true when there is apparently a need for a reduction to a three-meal-a-day schedule.

Mrs. P. L. G. writes: "My son is seven months old, weighs seventeen pounds and is healthy and happy. He is now showing signs of having too many meals and I would like to change him to a three-meal-a-day routine. How shall this be arranged and what should he have to eat at each meal?"

THREE-MEAL ROUTINE
You may have the leaflet, "Feeding from Twelve to Eighteen Months," which, with a few exceptions, can do duty for your baby book. Please enclose a self-addressed and three-cent stamped envelope with your request for the leaflet.

Meanwhile, here is the routine for three meals which is enjoyed by numerous babies of six to seven months of age:

Baby wakes about 6 to 6:30 o'clock. Breakfast is offered at 7 to 7:30 o'clock and consists of 2 to 4 table-spoons of well cooked, or pre-cooked cereal designed for babies, softened with part of the formula and the rest to drink from bottle or cup.

NAP BEFORE LUNCH
Short nap, 8:30 to 10:30 o'clock. After the nap, give baby 1 to 1½ ounces of orange juice and the daily dose of vitamin D medication.

Daily bath at 11:30 o'clock and lunch immediately afterward. Two to four table-spoons of sieved vegetables, with part or all of a sieved, hard-cooked egg yolk and the formula, or sieved vegetables, formula, and a small custard made of milk and the egg yolk, made up the noon meal.

TEA TIME FOR BABY
After the nap, baby may enjoy four ounces of milk to drink and a cracker and an hour before supper he may have more orange juice and more milk if he hasn't taken all he needs in the morning.

At 6 p.m. he has his last feeding for the night. This may again be cereal and milk and sieved, cooked fruit and milk, or the latter two alone. The two feedings of cereal may depend somewhat on baby's relish for them.

Tomorrow: Kissing Baby on the Mouth Gives Him Germs, Mrs. Elder Warns.

Mrs. McClung To Address Forum

The Liberal Women's Forum will hold its monthly business meeting in Liberal headquarters, Friday, May 8, at 2:45 p.m.

Mrs. Nellie McClung will be the guest speaker and a splendid musical programme has been arranged by Mrs. Jessie Nelson. Friends and members are cordially invited.

TO ENTERTAIN GIRL SCOUTS

Local Guide Association to Be Hostesses to Seattle Visitors Shortly

Mrs. W. C. Nichol was appointed honorary president of the local association of Girl Guides at the meeting of that organization held last evening at headquarters, Langley Street.

In response to an invitation received from the Municipal Chapter L.O.E., guides will attend the Empire Day service at Parliament Square on May 23. Guides and guides will meet at the corner of Belleville and Government Streets at 9:40.

Arrangements were made for the entertainment of a group of Girl Scouts from Seattle who are visiting Victoria on May 16 and 17.

All entries for badge examinations must be in before May 16, the names to be sent to the district secretaries, it was announced.

Congratulations were extended to the Lady Douglas Company Girl Guides, who had gained second place in the campfire singing at the Musical Festival. A team of Rangers will enter in the folk dancing at the Vancouver Festival to be held shortly.

Appreciation was expressed of the generous hospitality given by Mrs. W. C. Nichol in entertaining to tea visiting and local delegates to the recent annual meeting of the provincial council.

The next meeting will be held on June 1.

SPEED-SKATING CHAMPION WED

Toronto, May 5.—A wedding of interest to the sport world was solemnized here last night when Miss Lella Aileen Brooks, internationally known speed-skater was married to Edward Russell Campbell, son of W. J. Campbell and the late Mrs. Campbell of Owen Sound.

The bride who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Brooks won many skating awards a few years ago, including the North American championship. She represented Canada at the Olympic Games in 1932.

WOMAN LAWYER HEARD IN HOUSE

Ottawa, May 5.—First of her sex to appear as a duly accredited Parliamentary agent before the House of Commons committee, Mrs. Abe Lief of Ottawa today argued the cause of Mrs. Ruth Rudnikoff Stotland before the miscellaneous private bills committee. The issue was a bill in which Hymen Stotland of Montreal sought to divorce his wife on statutory grounds. Mrs. Lief is a barrister.

WOMEN HIT BY SALES TAX

But $100 "Tourist Exemption" Will Stop Much Petty Smuggling

By MOLLIE McGEHEE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, May 5.—Increase in the sales tax from 6 to 8 per cent, it is believed, will take its heaviest toll from hoarded wealth in teapots, stockings and the pockets of women's handbags, for women are estimated to make more than 80 per cent of all retail purchases of everyday commodities and clothing.

It was believed the provision in Finance Minister Dunning's budget, allowing free entry of numerous classes of goods valued at not more than $100 and brought home by visitors returning from abroad would remove, in part at least, one breach of the law said to be practised chiefly by women—petty smuggling.

The stylist scanned the list of tariff changes for possible steps to new sales and saw reductions affecting cotton embroideries and lace and rayon fabrics, particularly the variety commonly used in lingerie manufacture.

The millinery industry and its clients may benefit from inclusion of the free list of woven, knitted or plaited hat brims of classes not made in Canada, not more than six inches wide and for use exclusively in the use of hats or shapes. They may not be imported for trimming. Most of the brims come from France and Switzerland.

Some classes of tea and raisins from British Dominions were placed on the free list, and raisins from foreign countries will pay customs duty lower by one cent a pound.

Housewives taking full advantage of tariff reductions would cover their cakes with pink icing sprinkled with coconut. Two commodities, dragon's blood and cochineal, good for coloring-icing, were placed on the free list and the duty on dedicated coconut was lowered.

Girls who gave their beaus and male relatives gifts of scarfs and mufflers for presents may gain some encouragement from item 564A in the tariff list. It records a reduction in the British preferential rate from 7½ per cent to 20 per cent in the duty on Irish poplins composed wholly of silk or wool, not more than twenty-five inches wide or less than five yards long.

The reduction is 7½ per cent, but the sales tax on the finished product is up 3 per cent.

NEST EGGS HELP CITY

Reveal Funds Totalling $41,495 to Assist in Cutting Down Estimates

Revelation of $41,495 in "nest eggs," along with minor budgetary adjustments, brought the City Council a net $44,972 closer to its objective of a lower mill rate following a rapid perusal of part of the estimates yesterday.

The "nest eggs" included an amount of $20,894 set aside some years ago as a reserve fund for Sooke Lake water system repairs, another $10,801 contingency fund for the same system and $10,000 realized on the sale of equipment in the worsted mills. The three sums were transferred to revenue for the 1936 budget. The council, on the recommendation of the special estimates committee, also raised the cemetery fee estimated receipts by $200, police court fines and fees by $250, the road tax collection by $40 and the water rates from Sooke by $600. The last four items increased the receipts by $950, and with the "nest eggs" boosted the anticipated extra revenue to $42,485.

Estimated expenditures were cut by $15,126, but new increased expenditures called for $13,539, leaving a net reduction of $1,587. That, coupled with the $42,485, brought the budget $44,972 closer to a lower levy.

ADDED EXPENSES
Purchase of a new cash register for the comptroller's department necessitated the inclusion of $1,005 in the estimates, while provision to assist St. Joseph's Hospital, by enabling legislation is secured, raised the ante another $500, and a reduction in the charge against the E. & N. Railway for the repair of Johnson Street Bridge accounted for another $174. The major item, however, was $11,000, added through the city's inability to borrow for relief.

Economies effected included $1,875 and $101.25 on the carrying charges of two government relief loans, $100 on printing and stationery for the comptroller's department, $25 on mimeograph supplies, etc. $140 on the James Bay playground, $116 on medicines for the Old Men's Home, $700 on a new car for the city engineer, which was struck out and several items in the streets, bridges and sidewalks votes, which were taken from the ordinary budget and aligned as projects for the $100,000 provincial loan programme.

FOR LOAN PROGRAMME
In the last-mentioned category, the vote of $9,700 for repairs to Point Ellice Bridge was reduced to $200, effecting a saving of $9,500; the street signs and warning signs was cut from $1,270 to $1,500, to save $470; work at the Dallas Road and at Clover Point, amounting to $237 and $1,412, and repairs to the landing at

Rev. Henry Woods Dies in California

San Jose, Calif., May 5.—Rev. Henry Woods, S.J., eighty-two, University of Santa Clara librarian, died yesterday after a notable career in the Jesuit order as a teacher and writer.

The son of an episcopalian clergyman, born in London, he came to this coast with his family in 1860, settling on Vancouver Island.

He became a bank clerk in 1878 and later joined the Catholic Church, starting his studies at the University of Santa Clara.

He was associate editor of "America," the Jesuit national weekly, and for a time was professor of ethics at Santa Clara.

Lodge To Meet—Daughters of St. George, Victoria, Lodge No. 53 will hold their regular business meeting in the S.O.E. Hall, Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock.

St. Andrew's Guild—St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Ladies' Guild met yesterday afternoon in the lecture-room of the church. Mrs. John Cochrane, the president, in the chair. After the devotions, the business of the afternoon was discussed. As one of the preparatory steps towards the autumn bazaar, a handkerchief shower was held, the members of the guild contributing most generously. Plans were made for a beach picnic to be held in June at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Farnsworth. Gordon Head. Tea was served after the meeting, the hostesses being Mrs. John Cochrane, Mrs. J. H. Young and Mrs. William Head. The thanks of the guild were expressed to the hostesses by Mrs. George Sanson.

Find Out From Your Doctor if the "Pain" Remedy You Take is SAFE

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations.

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headache, or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it—in comparison with "Aspirin."

We say this because, before the discovery of "Aspirin," most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of "Aspirin" largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken "Aspirin" year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: "Aspirin" is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains... and safe for the average person to take regularly.

"Aspirin" Tablets are made in Canada. "Aspirin" is the registered trade-mark of the Bayer Company, Limited. Look for the name Bayer in the form of a cross on every tablet.

GORGEOUS

CHAPTER XVI

They sat on a bench against the side of the room. Almost all the tables were filled now, except that here and there couples had left their places to dance in the square space reserved for that purpose. The floor show had ended a few minutes before. Now the dance band was playing a gay and rhythmic tune, the hit number of a new musical show.

Tim Jamieson touched Toby's arm. "Bored?" he asked.

"Oh—no!"

"I thought you must be; you've been quiet so long."

"Have it?" Toby smiled. "I'd forgotten everything—this room and the people."

"And did you forget me, too?"

"Well—in a way. I was thinking how happy I am. Wishing everything could go on and on, just as it is now—the music and soft lights and everybody having a grand time. Oh, I have had a grand time tonight, a wonderful time! I don't know when—"

"Well, that's better!" Tim paused, eyeing her. Then he smiled. "You're a funny little thing, Toby Ryan. Did you know that?"

"Why?"

She had never looked lovelier. Her eyes, brightly questioning, seemed enormous. Her head was lifted, bringing into outline the adorable line of her throat. She put one hand to her cheek, tucking a stray curl into place and he noticed how graceful the movement was.

"Never mind," Tim said. "You're exactly the way I like you. And I'll tell you something else, I saw you this afternoon—no, I don't mean those few moments when we talked together. It was after I came away and went back. I was early; you see, I didn't want to take a chance of missing you. The fashion show was still going on and I stood at the door a moment. I saw you come in in a dress that was sort of rose colored—like pink sea foam. It was an evening dress."

Toby nodded. "It was lovely, wasn't it?"

"Lovely? It was gorgeous—or rather, you were gorgeous, wearing it. That's what you are and that's what I'm going to call you. Gorgeous. It's exactly the right name for you. Do you mind?"

She laughed. "I don't see why I should."

"Neither do I, Gorgeous."

They both laughed, then for no reason at all. Toby said, "I like your name—Tim. It seems to suit you. It sounds care-free and good-natured and—"

"Lazy?"

"Well, I wouldn't say that. At least, I wasn't going to. It is true!"

"Some people think so," he frowned. "But why should I pretend to like sitting around in an office when I don't? I've tried and I hate it. Looking at charts and tables and pretending to know what they mean. Going to conferences and hearing some old duffer spout off a lot of facts and figures that nobody gives a darn about or even listens to. It's a lousy job, that's what it is. Besides, if I did have a job, it would only mean taking it away from some poor devil who needs it. Why should I do that?"

Toby thought of Carol Marsh and nodded. "I see what you mean," she said, "and I think I agree with you."

The way things are, Tim went on, "the business is a lot better off than if I were trying to put my ear to the ground, or, of course, maybe I'll feel differently about it. Meanwhile, I've got other things to do—"

"What, for instance?"

"Oh, lots of things. Fooling around with boats in the summer. Playing golf and a little polo—I'm terrible at it, but still I like to keep at it. Staying in town in the winter, getting around and seeing people and keeping track of what's going on—"

"It sounds like a pleasant life," Toby told him.

"It's all right. Tell me, Gorgeous, do you like being a model?"

"I like it a lot better than working at Bergmann's."

He considered this. "Yes, I guess you would. But how about going around to studios and style shows and the place you do. Don't you meet a lot of fresh guys?"

The dimple showed in her cheek. "Only one, so far. There's a Mr. Timothy Jamieson, who's been something of a nuisance."

He grinned. "And what are you going to do about it?"

"I haven't quite decided yet."

"Well," he said, "if I can be of assistance in any way—"

"Thank you, I'll remember that."

The music that had ended a short time before was beginning again. This time the band played a number

CHINESE LOGGER KILLED AT WORK

Jang Kai, Chinese employee of the Elder Logging Company at Jordan River, was killed shortly after 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon when he was struck by a falling snag during operations at the company camp.

ON THE AIR

with a slower tempo. Toby had heard the words, sung by a radio favorite. They were rather sentimental and it was a dreamy, sentimental tune.

She said suddenly, "Let's dance."

He had asked her earlier and she had refused, afraid to reveal that she was not a practiced dancer. But her caution proved unnecessary. In Tim's arms she moved lightly, smoothly.

The dancing space was small and crowded. Another couple, rather awkward, swung toward them and he held her close. Toby felt his cheek against her hair. It was only for an instant; the awkward couple moved on and Tim released her.

He said, "Why didn't you tell me you can dance like this?"

She laughed, not bothering to reply. She had never known that dancing could be such sheer delight, but then, she had never had such a partner.

She was sorry when, at last, the music ended and they went back to their table. Several newcomers were entering, the women in evening wraps and the men in tail coats. Toby said that nearby tables had been deserted. Suddenly she realized it must be growing late.

"What time is it?" she asked.

Tim consulted his wrist watch. "Not late yet. A little after 1."

"Oh, but that is late! Remember, I have to work tomorrow."

"One more dance," he bargained. "Then we'll go."

Toby wanted that dance, too. She said, "Well, just one more—"

The one dance stretched into several. It was nearly an hour later when Tim helped her into a cab and dropped into the seat beside her. He was still protesting. "But it's not really late yet! Look—lots of people are just coming—"

"It's too late for me," Toby told him. "I've got a 9 o'clock appointment in the morning."

He was interested. "What are you going to do at 9 o'clock?"

"Stand before a camera," she told him, "with my best smile and show how easy it is to do the family washing since my husband bought me a Whinist washing machine."

"Is that supposed to be work?"

"If you'd try it once, you'd think so. They'll probably want to shoot the picture a dozen different ways. I'm afraid I can't. You see, I don't know how long I'll be working or whether the office will have something else for me in the afternoon."

"Then how about dinner?"

"Once more the cautioning voice rose, but this time Toby ignored it. "I don't know," she said. "But you can call me."

The entrance to Mrs. Moeller's rooming house looked dingier and shabbier than it had ever looked as Toby and Tim Jamieson stepped out of the cab. He followed her up the half-dozen steps, took both her hands in his.

SCHOOL ROW LEADS TO JAIL

Eight Adults and Two Youths Detained in Tacoma

Tacoma, May 5.—Ten persons—eight adults and two juveniles—were in the city jail today after their arrest in the Lincoln High School Cafeteria in connection with two demonstrations held at the school yesterday.

The dispute dated to April 22, when 500 Lincoln High School students participated in a "peace strike." Yesterday some 200 students and adults gathered in front of the building with banners and signs. The arrests were made when a second demonstration occurred about the time Principal W. C. P. Medina was said to have been arranging to confer with a committee over the situation.

LICENSE REVISION TO BE CONSIDERED

A proposal by Councillor Frederick G. Eaton for a "soak-the-rich" revision of trades licenses in Esquimalt was referred last night by the municipal council to the finance committee for full investigation and report. Councillor Eaton will sit with the committee, which consists of Councillor Thomas Hadfield (chairman) and Councillors L. Pullen and David A. Henry.

Councillor Eaton's motion included the raising to $100 of the licenses for light and power, street railway, telephone and alcoholic beverage companies.

Considerable debate has been heard on this question at previous sessions of the council.

Swimmers Argue Two Hours But Fail To Settle Controversy

THE SPORTS MIRROR

By PETER SALLAWAY

DOMINOES are down and counted out. Victoria's basketball ambassadors never staged a comeback in the Canadian championship series at Windsor, Ont. After dropping the third straight game to the Fords on Saturday night we must form the conclusion the local boys were up against a superior outfit. Whether or not the Dominos really hit their stride in the eastern city will not be able to ascertain until the boys arrive home this week. One thing we do know, however, and that is that the Fords must be a smart outfit. In the three games they took the first easily; battled through to a one-point decision in the second and then came back to kick the stuffing out of the Victoria lads in the third.

Proof of the superiority of the Fords is clearly shown in the regular wing forwards of the three games. The Fords outscored the Dominos in field goals forty-eight to thirty-three. In free shots the Windsor club made twenty-four out of forty, for a better than 50 per cent average, while the Dominos put through only twenty-five out of fifty-three. In this department, Art Chapman, towering centre of the Dominos, was woefully weak, getting only six out of twenty. The Dominos had only thirty-two personal fouls called against them as against forty-one for the Fords. In points, Windsor had a total of 120 with the Dominos getting 81.

One outstanding feature of the series was the low-scoring of the regular wing forwards of the Dominos, Red Martin and Porky Andrews. The former contributed only twelve points and Andrews ten. These figures are far below the season averages of these two boys and makes one feel that they were not right. Bulk of the scoring for the Victoria team fell on the shoulders of Art and Chuck Chapman and Doug Peden, who were responsible for fifty-seven points. The Dominos lost the series and a possible chance of going to Berlin, but they did mightily well. They are the second best team in Canada and have nothing to be ashamed of. In the four seasons they have won two championships and finished runners-up once. That is a pretty smooth record.

When Jimmy McLarnin steps into the ring against Tony Canzoneri on Friday night in New York, his wife will be at the ringside for the first time. As matter of fact, it will be the first time his first lady has ever seen him in action. This will be McLarnin's first fight since he joined the married men's ranks last year. For Friday's bout Jimmy will have a big lift in the weights, but he will be fighting one of the smartest little men to ever lace on the padded mitts. Canzoneri has been active all through his ring career and over ten rounds he may be able to outstep the veteran Canadian.

Jimmy has gone back on his word by fighting again in a New York ring. When interviewed by your correspondent following his return to the coast after his last fight with Barney Ross, welterweight champion, McLarnin declared he was through with the big town. Jimmy said he couldn't get a square deal in New York and never wanted to fight there again. But he is going back.

McLarnin is interested in one thing only—money. If New York offers enough money, McLarnin will fight there. The Vancouver boy is one smart business man. He demands and gets a nice percentage when he signs up for a bout. With the Friday fight listed as a "natural," Jimmy will add another few thousands to his already fat bank roll.

French Net Stars Make Clean Sweep

Paris, May 5.—France made a clean sweep in its Davis Cup tennis encounter with China by winning the final two singles matches Sunday. Christian Boussus defeated Guy Chang 6-0, 6-0, 6-2, while M. Deste-mau whipped Kho Sin Kie, 6-3, 6-2, 6-0, 6-2.

V.A.S.C. Is Still Seeking to Have Coach Reinstated

Delegation Attends Annual Meeting of League, But Fails to Get Support

Frank Hyslop Is Again President

Victoria's swimming leaders went through two hours of heated discussion at the Y.M.C.A. yesterday evening, at the annual meeting of the Vancouver Island Swimming League, and at the finish were no closer to a solution to the problem that has resulted in the withdrawal of the Victoria Amateur Swimming Club from the parent body.

Handing out of a permanent suspension to Colin S. McFayden, coach of the V.A.S.C., by the British Columbia branch of the Canadian Amateur Swimming Association proved the main point of argument with the delegation seeking the co-operation of the league members in securing his reinstatement and the league in turn taking no action on the request.

As matters now stand the deadlock remains with the V.A.S.C. still on the outside and the league still comprising two clubs, Pacific Swimming Club and the Y.M.C.A. Swimming Club.

During the discussion it was brought forth that lack of co-ordination among the Victoria clubs was causing discussion and would prove detrimental to the sport in this city, unless some comprehensive scheme was worked out to bring all the clubs together again.

Phil Bond, speaker for the delegation of seven from the V.A.S.C., emphasized that he and his clubmen had the highest regard for their coach and are not prepared to dispense with his services. He said, however, if officials of the league would do all possible to gain his reinstatement they would rejoice the league.

Archie McKinnon, coach of the Y.M.C.A. in replying to the remarks of Bond, said that in his opinion, the action taken was in the best interests of swimming in Victoria. Ernie Peden, president of the Pacific Club, backed up Coach McKinnon in his statement.

Other members of the league, speaking in support of the action taken, said they felt the move would prove detrimental to a few but would benefit swimming in general and for that reason could not see their way clear to give their support to any move for lifting of the suspension.

At the conclusion Bond announced he would report back to the meeting of the V.A.S.C. He thanked President Frank Hyslop and the members of the league for the hearing given the delegation.

HYSLOP RETURNED
Election of officers resulted in the re-election of Frank Hyslop to the office of president for the second successive year. Miss Georgia Rudge was named secretary-treasurer to succeed Bill Findlay, resigned. Miss Bradford who acted as secretary pro tem, was thanked for her efforts in the interests of the league.

Ernie Peden expressed appreciation for the untiring efforts of President Hyslop to keep a spirit of goodwill among the clubs.

In making his report President Hyslop told of the fine year experienced by the league. Four league galas had been staged and nine sanctioned aquatic events put on and, in addition, several enterprises had been conducted to promote good feeling among the league members.

The Vancouver Island Swimming League will apply for a sanction to stage a swimming meet in conjunction with the Kinsmen's carnival to be held at the Crystal Garden, May 24. Ernie Peden, George Bone and Bob Smiri are looking after arrangements for the event.

This summer the league plans to stage one or two outdoor meets in and around Victoria. To add interest to the events the league will apply for B.C. outdoor championships, in the following events: 300 yards women's freestyle; 50 yards women's freestyle and 300 yards men's freestyle.

President Frank Hyslop was named to represent the league at the next meeting of the provincial body, to be held in Vancouver late this month. The next meeting of the league will be held on May 18.

of Rennie and Taylor Bakery at 8 o'clock. Plans will be made for the season's play and all teams are asked to have delegates present.

Chester Vase Is Won By Taj Akbar

Canadian Press
Chester, Eng., May 5.—The Aga Khan's Taj Akbar today won the Chester Vase, run over a course of about 1½ miles, from a field of eleven.

Quoted at 7 to 1, Taj Akbar had a margin of three lengths over Mrs. J. Shand's Thankerton in second place. Third was Lord Derby's Bob-sleigh. Thankerton was quoted at 5 to 2 and Bobsleigh at 5 to 1.

TWIN-BILL IS ON TOMORROW

Two Soccer Games Carded at Athletic Park; McKay Shield Series Opens

The opening game of the McKay shield series and a replay match, will be staged tomorrow afternoon in the form of a double header at the Athletic Park by the Wednesday Football League. Navy and Hudson's Bay will clash in the opener at 2:30 o'clock, in the shield series. Dave McMillan will referee. The second match will bring together Kreges and James Bay Wanderers in a replay of their Remble and Taylor Cup encounter. Last week Kreges won the fixture 5 to 2, but James Bay Wanderers protested on the ineligibility of Joe Travis, and league officials sustained the protest. Percy Shrimpton will referee.

The teams follow:
Kreges—J. Travis, McKenzie, Coates, Jack, White, McBride, Stokes, Murray, McMillan, Newell, Duncan, McMillan, Crowe, McMillan, Hill, Hall and Alcock.
James Bay Wanderers—Saddler, Thame, Eastwood, Bourne, Magee, Garnett, Ball, Les Gellin, T. Bedford, Fieldhouse, White and Roekamp.

EIGHT-OARED SHELL SHOWN

Boat to Be Taken to J.B.A.A. Clubhouse Tomorrow; Christened Saturday

The James Bay Athletic Association's new eight-oared shell, at present on view in the showrooms of Thomas Plimley Company Limited, Yates Street, will be removed to the Gorge tomorrow and will be used officially for the first time in local competition on May 24 against Vancouver oarsmen.

The local rowing club christened the shell in Seattle last Saturday when they sent two crews against the University of Washington lightweight. At the close of the race the boys were highly praised for their showings by Coach Al Ulbricht, Washington member.

Sixty-two feet long and weighing 280 pounds, the boat was built of Canadian wood by George Pocock & Company, makers of the last four Olympic championship shells, in Seattle.

TENNIS HEADS AT GANGES ELECTED

Members of the Harbor House Tennis Club elected Desmond Crofton president for the ensuing year at a recent meeting in the Ganges Centre.

The complete slate of officers follows: Honorary president, Captain P. H. Walter, R.N.; president, Desmond Crofton; vice-president, Dr. R. Bush; secretary-treasurer, Graham Shove; tournament and entertainment committee, Mrs. G. Shove, Miss Dorcas Crofton, D. K. Crofton, Paddy Crofton; tea committee, Misses Dorothy Moorhouse and Edna Morris.

Expressions of thanks for the excellent work of J. D. Halley, retiring secretary-treasurer, were voted at the meeting.

To restrict the number of junior members, the club reduced the age limit for that classification from eighteen to sixteen years, but made

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS

—By John Hix

Aluminum is the most abundant metal on earth, and it stands third in abundance among all the elements—exceeded only by oxygen and silicon. Yet, strange as it seems, the history of aluminum is but little more than a century long and its commercial use dates back only half a century. Aluminum, although plentiful, defied chemists until two young men, working independently and unknown to each other, discovered the first commercial extraction process almost simultaneously.

Charles M. Hall, an American, and Paul Heroult, a Frenchman, each twenty-two years old, discovered in 1855 that aluminum could be extracted from bauxite by breaking it

Hilliard Confesses Grid Impersonation

Former University of Texas Star Admits He Played For Ottawa Rough Riders Under Name of Roy Berry; A.A.U. of C. Lifts Suspension on Ottawa Club Officials

Dunville, Ont., May 5.—The mysterious Boon Hilliard, former University of Texas football star who went to Ottawa last fall and played for Rough Riders under the name of Roy Berry, Tulsa, Okla., has confessed all. There is no more mystery.

President W. A. Fry of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada announced today. Hilliard's confession was in his hand and nine members of the Ottawa Football Club executive, barred from amateur sport last year on suspicion of complicity in the impersonation plot, were back in good standing.

Hilliard's explanation, said Mr. Fry, absolved the club officers of blame. He did not explain, though, why the Texas player found it necessary to come to Canada under an assumed name. It was reported Hilliard had played professional baseball and borrowed Berry's amateur card in order to qualify under Inter-Provincial Rugby Football Union regulations.

Hilliard played the full 1935 season for Rough Riders, starting in the final game of the schedule when Ottawa defeated Toronto Argonauts and prevented the Toronto team from finishing tied for the lead with Hamilton Tigers. Hamilton won the championship.

He returned to the United States the night after the final game.

down with electricity while the bauxite was in solution with molten cryolite. This comparatively simple method made commercial aluminum possible.

Prior to their discoveries, aluminum occupied a place among the metals comparable to that of platinum, and jewelry made from it was valued about the same as platinum jewelry. So rare and expensive was this metal that a little lump of it was given a place second only to the royal crown jewels at the Paris Exposition in 1855.

Aluminum was first extracted in its metallic form in 1854. The price then was $545 a pound. Chemists knew that it existed in abundance

M'LARNIN IS ROSS'S CHOICE

Welterweight Champ Picks Jimmy to Whip Canzoneri on Friday

Chicago, May 5.—Barney Ross, who has taken punches from both of them and handed a few back, picks Jimmy McLarnin to whip Tony Canzoneri Friday night when the two classy little ring-men meet in a scheduled ten-round bout in New York's Madison Square Garden.

Ross, world welterweight champion by virtue of a victory over "Baby-faced" Jimmy and one-time holder of the lightweight crown, taken from Canzoneri, likes McLarnin because he thinks he's a harder puncher and better boxer.

"I look for a tough fight, but I think Jimmy will win," said Ross, who will see the fight. "Jimmy, from my fights with both boys, is the harder hitter and the superior boxer. I also think Canzoneri will have to give away a few much weight."

"I don't think there'll be a knockout, and if McLarnin does win it's going to be only by a shade."

San Fran. co-manager of Ross hopes his champion is a poor "puncher."

"Whether Ross meets the winner of the fight Friday may depend on how decisively it is won," Pian said. "I hope Tony wins, by a knockout, because if he did a Ross-Canzoneri fight would draw great."

in all clays and dirt, but they were at a loss to know how to extract it. The discovery of Hall and Heroult brought aluminum down to eighteen cents a pound and put it into commerce, where today it occupies a highly important position.

Some ancient Roman fighters believed that the highest form of fighting was the ability to ward off an opponent, protect oneself and wear the opponent out without striking him or being struck. Melancomas, noted fighter of this class, could defend himself for hours and his opponent, vainly trying to land a blow would sooner or later wear himself out in the attempt.

SWIM RECORDS ARE BETTERED

Three Canadian Marks Set Up at Toronto Meet Saturday Night

Toronto, May 5.—Kay Reynolds, sixteen-year-old, dolphin, lived up to predictions Saturday night when she established a new record in the 220-yard senior women's breaststroke in a swimming meet that saw three Canadian records broken.

The young aquatic star was given stiff competition by Ena Erskine, former recordholder, to churn the distance in three minutes thirty-one seconds. The old record was 3:28.2-5. Jed Clawson clipped four seconds from the old record to negotiate the 200-yard senior men's breaststroke in 2:24.2-8. The Dolphin junior girls' 200-yard relay broke the third record with no other team to beat. The quartette, M. Stone, M. McKinney, G. Cameron and E. Munro, set the new record of 10:54.2-8.

Curtis Cup Golf Teams Are Ready

TENNIS LEAGUE TO MEET FRIDAY

Election of officers for the season will take place at the annual meeting of the Vancouver Island Tennis League which will be held in Dr. E. W. Boak's office in the Pemberton Building Friday evening at 8 o'clock.

Suggestions that in the event of the league's divisions not operating, a system of challenge matches be substituted and that a knockout series be arranged, will be discussed. A large attendance is expected.

GORGE MAKES GOLF PLANS

Many Competitions Being Arranged For Summer; U.C.T. Match Carded

Members of the Gorge Vale Golf Club staged a supper following the president-captain match played on Sunday. Following the supper, a long string of competitions were discussed, and passed to the match committee to work out in detail and add to the fixture list for 1936.

"Cups and prizes that were donated caused a great deal of excitement. It seems as though Capt. H. H. Allen and his sides will have a busy time for the whole of the season. The president's and captain's match, with supper following, was such a success that it was decided to hold these matches three times a year, keeping the same team for the three matches, adding those who may wish to play.

Fred Clunk, the professional, will also give semi-monthly lectures, and the committee will follow with golf etiquette.

The club championship qualifying round will be played May 17, when it is expected one of the largest entries in the club's history will see off.

Next Saturday the United-Commercial Travelers will play their annual match, when it is expected approximately sixty players will enjoy their round on this popular course.

United States Women Will Defend Trophy Against British at Gleneagles; Pairings Are Announced; Cold Weather Bothers Invaders

Gleneagles, Scotland, May 5.—The rival captains of the United States and British women's Curtis Cup golf teams today named six players each for the three foursome and six twosome matches to be played tomorrow when the United States will defend the cup for the second time in the biennial series started four years ago.

The pairings, announced by Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare, American champion and team captain, and Wanda Morgan, British titleholder and team captain, follow:

Foursomes: Mrs. Vare and Patty Berg, Minneapolis, vs. Miss Morgan and Marjorie Garon.
Twosomes: Mrs. Vare vs. Miss Morgan; Mrs. Maureen Orcutt Crews, Coral Gables, Fla., and Mrs. Leon Cheney, Santa Monica, Calif., vs. Mrs. J. B. Walker and Pamela Barton.

Mrs. Opal Hill, Kansas City, and Charlotte Glutting, South Orange, N.J., vs. Mrs. Andrew Hom and Jessie Anderson.

Twosomes: Mrs. Vare vs. Miss Morgan; Miss Berg vs. Mrs. Hom; Miss Glutting vs. Miss Barton; Mrs. Crews vs. Mrs. Walker; Mrs. Cheney vs. Miss Anderson, and Mrs. Hill vs. Miss Garon.

A thoroughly chilled and disappointed group were the United States golfers after yesterday's single round of practice over this Perthshire course.

LOSE CONFIDENCE
The Americans have lost some of the confidence with which they landed in England ten days ago. Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare, captain of the team, has clamped a rigid censorship on the other members of the team. Nevertheless, their dissatisfaction with their play on Gleneagles' glass-fast greens and their displeasure with the weather is ill-concealed.

In the foursomes practice in face of yesterday's perishing wind, hampered by the necessity of wearing woolen golfing mitts, the Americans saw their scores mount well into the 80's.

The British team, however, appeared much less perturbed by the cold. Phyllis Wade, Bournemouth, 1934 champion, toured the course in 76, one under women's par.

Jack McLennan Is Now in Vancouver

Victoria lost a fine athlete in the departure for Vancouver, recently, of Jack McLennan, Member of Strathis, champions of the Olympic Senior Tenpin League. McLennan was a fine tenpin and fivepin bowler. He was also a valued member of the Uplands Golf Club. Jack has been transferred to Vancouver by his employers.

LEAF'S CHANGE THEIR DEFENCE

Toronto Hockey Club Will Seek New Goalie; Clancy Will Be Substitute

Toronto, May 5.—Toronto Maple Leafs will present a rebuilt defence next season, Manager Conny Smythe indicated today on his return from a western Canada exhibition trip.

At least two new goalkeepers will be tried out at the fall training camp he said but the club would not part with George Hainsworth, their forty-year-old goalie, until they had a better man.

He indicated Red Horner and Jimmy Fowler, formerly of Syracuse, will make up one defence pair and Happy Day and Jack Howard, also of Syracuse, another. King Clancy will be used as a substitute for Day.

Smythe plans little change up front. He said Harvey Jackson, who was a great disappointment last season, will be offered a reasonable contract and if he refuses it "then we will have to sell him."

SEVENTH FLIGHT
R. B. Horton vs. D. A. Weir.
J. Munro vs. P. B. Richardson.
W. W. Findlay vs. S. D. Markham.
W. S. Thatcher vs. B. Hall.

EIGHTH FLIGHT
R. H. Hoskins vs. A. C. Stickley.
Geo. Hall bye.

Hubbell Gives Up Four Hits to Lose

Southpaw Star of New York Giants Drops Heart-breaker to Cincinnati Reds 1 to 0; Ray Benge Hurls Fourth Straight Victory For Boston

The New York Giants batsmen should hang their heads when Carl Hubbell comes along, for they have been letting him down in shameful fashion.

In the last twenty-six innings the ace finger has worked on the mound the Giants have given him exactly one run to play with. That isn't much of a lead in any ball game, even behind Hubbell, who won twenty-three while losing twelve last year.

Hubbell pitched four-hit ball yesterday but the Giants failed to score a single run and went down 1 to 0 before the Cincinnati Reds. In his previous start, Hubbell went seven innings against the St. Louis Cardinals but lost 2 to 1 when his mates failed to fathom the slants of Leroy Parnelle. Hubbell won his first two games of the season.

Rain played havoc with the schedule and only one other National League and one American League game were played yesterday.

Ray Benge, the leading pitcher of the National League, registered his fourth straight win as the Boston Bees defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 7 to 6 to halt the latter's winning streak of six games. The Cleveland Indians took their second straight victory from the Washington Senators 6 to 3.

Metochosin Tennis Club Heads Named
Rev. H. M. Bolton was re-elected president of the Metochosin Tennis Club at that body's annual meeting in the home of Mrs. I. Jones recently.

Carl Coster-Brown was made vice-president and A. D. Elwood was returned as secretary-treasurer.

Executive members include Mrs. McCreight, Mrs. Jones, Kathleen Milne, Mary Gray and Dick Johnson. Miss Gray and Beth Elwood were appointed to the refreshments committee.

The club's courts will be opened on Saturday.

CRICKET PRACTICE

The Victoria Cricket Club will hold its first practice of the season at Macdonald Park on Saturday. All players are requested to be on hand at 2.30 o'clock.

BOLD VENTURE HIGH WINNER

Kentucky Derby Victor Leads Three-year-olds in Earnings to Date

New York, May 5.—Marion L. Schwartz's Bold Venture, winner of the Kentucky Derby, heads the three-year-old money winning list, but his position is precarious in view of the sturdy opposition he will meet in approaching rich stakes.

Joseph E. Widener's Brevity, victim of poor racing luck in the Derby, in which he finished second, will not compete in the Preakness at Pimlico, May 16.

Bold Venture will be opposed, however, by Granville, the colt that lost his rider in the derby, and a few top-notch horses that did not run in the Churchill Downs stake—notably Jean Bart and Memory Book.

Brevity and C. V. Whitney's Red Rain, idle so far this year, are expected to provide the principal competition in the Rich Belmont Stakes at Belmont Park, June 6.

Indian Broom may come east later in the season to re-enter the battle after trying his luck on the west coast.

The leading money winners in the division: Bold Venture, $38,475; He Did, $28,350; Brevity, $27,600; Indian Broom, $17,280; The Righter, $17,000; Gold Seeker (a filly), $11,850; Teufel, $11,275; Rushaway, $10,110; Holl Image, $7,285 and Bright Plumage, $7,150.

Touring Cricketers Drop First Match in England to Worcestershire

London, May 5.—The touring Indian team, making its debut on English soil this year, encountered a snag when Worcestershire defeated the visitors by three wickets in their three-day cricket match concluded today.

Yorkshire, champion county, pitted against M.C.C. won by a clear-cut margin of eight wickets.

Two county championship fixtures ended with wins for Kent and Surrey, Glamorgan by 111 runs, and Surrey turned in a first-innings decision over Leicestershire at Leicester.

In another game between Oxford University and Gloucestershire, Oxford edged out a victory.

The scores: All India 229 and 150; Worcestershire 248 and 154 for seven wickets (Herman 68 not out, Mohammed Mian 56 for 60); at Worcester, M.C.C. 170 and 16 (Hendren 75, Smalles 64 for 64); Yorkshire 290 and 68 for two, at Lords.

Kent 187 and 478 for seven, declared (Ashdown 187, Woolley 68, Valentine 51, Wright 63 not out); Glamorgan 165 and 384 (Turnbull 115).

Surrey 351 and 233 and six, declared; Leicestershire 283 and 192 for six (Dempster 100 not out).

Oxford University 348 and 261 (Kempton 106, Barnett 40 for 31); Gloucestershire 315 and 300 (Neale 134).

Lumbermen to Hold Annual Golf Event

The annual lumbermen's golf tournament will be held at Qualicum Beach on May 10.

This tournament is open to all lumbermen, loggers, foresters and others who are directly connected with the industry.

Forms have already been sent out, and Chas. Wilkinson requests that all entries be returned to him, as

Death Appeals In Third Week

Attorney-General Replies to Defence Pleas Before Court of Appeal

Attorney-General Sloan, crown counsel opposing appeal of Richardson, Eneas and Alex George, convicted of the murder of Indian Constable F. H. Gisbourne on the Canford Reserve, near Merritt, two years ago yesterday traced movements of the three accused on the night of the killing, in his contention that a common intent existed.

When the Court of Appeal reconvened, opening its third week on the three murder appeals, Mr. Sloan concluded Tommy Andrews' evidence, pointing out that Andrews was given $1.50 by Richardson George to keep his mouth shut about the affair.

Mr. Sloan then told the court that Eneas George was the only brother who lived on the Canford Reserve, that when Mary Ann, Eneas's wife, had been stabbed, presumably by Eneas, a call went out to bring the George family together. The other three brothers lived on reserves nearby.

Joseph George, the fourth brother, who was acquitted of Gisbourne's murder, had testified to and his wife went out to bring the George family together. The other three brothers lived on reserves nearby.

Why, asked Mr. Sloan, did the others come unless it was to reach some decision concerning Eneas, it couldn't, as contended by defence counsel, have been that all four brothers met on the Canford Reserve to repair a fence, and there was no evidence they actually did.

On the other hand, the fence, located up a hill about a mile from where the fight started, was repaired, as a 9 p.m. and the four stayed up until midnight either to hide Eneas from the police or to resist his arrest, knowing Carr and Gisbourne were returning for that purpose.

The evidence of Joseph George, Mr. Sloan asserted, clearly indicated a common intent not to permit Eneas to be removed to Merritt on the night of the killing.

COMMON DESIGN
Their excuse for wanting to keep Eneas was that they feared he might commit suicide, owing to Mary Ann's condition, said Mr. Sloan, but if that was true, why didn't they turn him over to the peace officers who would see that he didn't?

Mr. Justice Martin—"What is your exact position on the common design? It is going very far to say there was a deliberate attempt to ambush the police. Supposing it is agreed that the Indians were going to give Eneas up next morning? When did that good intention become converted into a bad one? You claim they had no intention of turning Eneas over to the police that night. When confronted by Gisbourne did they then form a design to resist? It is an extremely difficult situation; something I've never experienced before."

Mr. Sloan—"As they proceeded to resist they must have formed a common design."

Mr. Justice Martin—"Quite true. That is your secondary phase. It has been a pleasure to listen to your handling of the situation."

Mr. Sloan—"Your lordship's secondary phase is what the crown puts forward as the primary phase."

Mr. Justice Martin—"It has been a very profitable discussion."

The Attorney-General then pointed out that Mr. Justice Murphy at the first trial at Vernon did not deal with the question of common intent having been formed up the hill where the fence was being repaired, but at the moment the fight started, while Chief Justice Morrison in his charge to the jury dealt with the question of common intent having been arrived at up hill. The crown's case, Mr. Sloan contended, covered both phases fully.

Chief Justice Macdonald—"If the Indians formed a common intent up the hill to take Eneas into Merritt next day, the intent to resist may have arisen when Gisbourne confronted them."

Mr. Sloan—"Common intent was there, whether it was arrived at up the hill or at the time the fight started."

Mr. Justice Martin—"You mean that the common design was not to hand Eneas over at all."

Mr. Sloan—"Not to hand him over that night."

WHY NO WEAPONS?
The Attorney-General at this juncture proceeded to read from the evidence where Richardson George shouted: "You want to fight" several times when accosted by Gisbourne, and Henry Castillon objected to the intonation in the Attorney-General's voice, but the Chief Justice warned Mr. Castillon not to interrupt.

Mr. Sloan pointed out that Henry Brown intoned similarly, but Mr. Castillon denied it.

Mr. Sloan—"I am not accustomed to trying to fool the court. That is not my practice. I submit there was common intent to fight."

The Chief Justice—"There is pretty good evidence to that effect."

Mr. Sloan—"The crown's position is that all four were guilty of murder as they had a common purpose, and the crown's side of the case was properly put to the jury."

Mr. Justice Martin—"What puzzles me is, if they were determined not to give Eneas up that night, why were they not armed with weapons of some kind?"

Mr. Sloan—"My lord, you are trying to limit the crown's position as to common intent being formed up the hill. I submit common intent may have been formed uphill to take Eneas in next day, coupled with a determination not to surrender him, but intent to offer resistance was formed at the time Richardson asked: "Do you want to fight?"

The Attorney-General, meeting the defence contention of self-defence and provocation, said that the accused knew Joseph George was alive when Carr and Gisbourne were thrown into the river. They knew Carr was alive when he was thrown in, as evidence showed this.

Defence contention, he argued, that the two officers were killed because the Indians thought Joseph George was dead and their own lives in danger, had been clearly disproved.

Mr. Justice M. A. Macdonald—"What right had they to be provoked against Carr if Gisbourne was supposed to have shot Joseph?"

Mr. Sloan—"There is no evidence to show how Joseph travelled from where the fight started to where he went down in the fight."

The Chief Justice—"The shot was fired where Gisbourne and Joseph George went down and afterwards Carr was killed. What does it matter what they did to Carr after Gisbourne was killed?"

Mr. Sloan then told how the main defence evidence was based on the testimony of Joseph Edwards, crippled Indian, who changed his story at the second trial, and how the crown considered him untrustworthy and asked the jury to disregard him on both sides could cross-examine him.

Edwards testified at the second trial that the fight started after the shot was fired, whereas at the inquest, at the preliminary trial and at the first trial at Vernon he had sworn that the fight started long before the shot was fired, that Richardson and Eneas had chased Gisbourne for 120 feet with clubs, and in self defence, Gisbourne drew his small revolver, meeting death shortly afterward.

The hearing continues.

FOLDERS WIN WIDE ACCLAIM

Many favorable comments have been passed by travel bureaus and automobile associations throughout the states of Washington, Oregon and California, on the new booklet of Vancouver Island holiday resorts recently published by the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau.

The folders are splendid, just what is needed by motorists going to British Columbia," says the manager of the National Automobile Club of Sacramento.

"We consider your booklet most comprehensive and splendidly illustrated," writes Charles C. Norris, touring director of the Southern California division of the National Automobile Club.

Requests in today's mail ask for more than 4,000 copies of these folders. Many of the writers state that this book is the most practical tourist folder issued on the Coast, as it gives the very information persons have been asking for.

If demands, as being received, continue, it will appear that all the 30,000 copies of the book, printed by the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau, will quickly be in the hands of prospective visitors.

By the same mail came a letter from the National Touring Bureau of the American Automobile, Washington, D.C., announcing that the folder issued by the bureau is being listed in the special bulletin which the A.A.A. sends to all its sub offices throughout the continent.

This means that the beauties and attractions of Victoria, will receive through this bulletin alone, national publicity.

Enil Raymond, mailing clerk at the bureau, said this morning that from January 1 to April 31, 24,616 circular letters had been distributed to parts of the continent, compared with 30,731 for the whole of last year.

Letters from individuals who state they are coming to Victoria during the summer are increasing in numbers daily. In short, everything points to an exceptionally busy tourist business this summer.

Women Bowlers Go to Congress

Tomorrow morning five Victoria women tenpin bowlers from the Victoria Ladies' Tenpin League will leave en route to Portland and the annual Pacific Northwest International Bowling Congress. This will be the first time local women have competed in the event.

The following will make the trip: Mrs. V. Elwood, Mrs. D. McBeath, Miss J. Bradford, Miss E. Irvine and Mrs. A. Ray.

The trip has been made possible through donations from the following: Watson's Men's Wear, MacFarlane Drug, Kent's Radio, Needlecraft Shoppe, Scott and Feden, Woolworth's, Northwestern Creamery, Carmelcrip, McDowell and Mann, Lewis's Carriage, Feden Bros., Good Eats Cafe, Macdonald's Consolidated, Art Porter, D. Reid, Olympic Recreations, The Times and The Colonist.

THE BIG SIX
Pounding out two hits in three times at bat, Leo Durocher, of the St. Louis Cardinals, wrote his way into baseball's Big Six yesterday. While the other leaders were idle, he sent his average soaring to .410 to replace Joe Moore, of the Giants, as the third man in the National League trio. Moore got only one hit in four times at bat.

The standings:

GOOD SALMON QUOTAS TAKEN

Weather Unfavorable But Jack Spring and Grise Catches Made

Fishermen braved adverse weather conditions Sunday in lakes, river, streams and tidal waters, and were rewarded with good quotas. Fishers had unlimited success in Saanich Inlet in regard to grise and Jack spring catches. "Red" Shemilt said yesterday the fish in the Arm were rising to the Heddon Basser plug and number four and one-half silver superior.

Shemilt and "Red" Laird, two red-heads, both got their limit of fish which included Jack springs and grise. They were using these two lures exclusively. The best fishing was around McCurdy Bay, McKensie Bay, from Twin Point to Senatus Island to Whittaker's Point and the Boulder. Freddy Smith and F. Ray also got their limit of these fish and were using the Heddon lure.

Sunday morning an angler counted over fifty posts in McKensie Bay alone. Stan "Blondy" Williams, Doug Robinson and Fred Harman secured three Jack springs, one bass and five grise between them. They were fishing at the Goldstream and by the limit of Cuthroat trail in Cowichan Lake. They were trolling, Ed. Clayards and a friend got their limit of trout in Shawnigan Lake, just off the Old Mill site, Friday. They were using black m's.

Roger Monteith reported yesterday Cowichan River is coming into its own again. The recent melting snow had swollen the stream considerably, but now it is receding to normal. Arthur Pitts was with Mr. Monteith Sunday at the head of the river, and they landed a dozen rainbow trout between them. They were wading and using the Royal Coachman and Red Cedar ant. The fish weighed from one to three pounds.

There was many possible high explosive compounds, said Mr. Lyons. But only a few of them were of any value commercially. Nitroglycerine was the basis of most of these.

Nitroglycerine was discovered by an Italian chemist in 1846. For twenty years it was treated only as a subject of academic interest. Then Alfred Nobel of Sweden realized its commercial possibilities. After experimentation he discovered the use of fulminate of mercury as a detonator for nitroglycerine. Detonation had been the principal problem in the use of the new material.

From that time to the present day, said Mr. Lyons, there had been a constant improvement in manufacturing methods and the safe handling of high explosives.

Nitroglycerine explosives, he said, still held the high explosive stage because they alone best fulfilled the three conditions required: the power to do a lot of work, cheapness and comparative safety in handling. The second condition was the hardest to attain.

Modern developments had been largely concerned with modifications which prevented the explosive from freezing. Dehydration of the glycerine and the use of ethylene diglycol (commercial, radiator anti-freeze) were the principal methods employed.

"High explosive is the father of all modern progress as we know it. There is no other single agency which has had such an effect of speeding up all kind of business," R. H. Lyons, former manager of the James Island plant of Canadian Industries Limited, told the Gyro Club at its luncheon yesterday in the course of a talk on explosives.

Mr. Lyons reviewed the history of explosives, told of their uses and the various processes of manufacture of each type.

The first explosive, black powder, became generally known in the thirteenth century. Its invention could not be properly traced, some attributing it to the Chinese, some to the Indians, some to the Greeks and others to the Egyptians.

It was black powder, used in crude guns, which brought the downfall of the feudal system by permitting the assault of the feudal castles.

Black powder came down through the years almost unchanged to less than three-quarters of a century ago, when modern high explosives came into the field.

Collegians Do Goldsmith Play

"She Stoops to Conquer"
Produced Here By U.B.C.
Club Under Kiwanians

By M. A.
The Players' Club of the University of British Columbia dipped into the eighteenth century for its play this year and brought out Oliver Goldsmith's "She Stoops to Conquer." This in four acts of two scenes each the members of the club produced at the Royal Victoria Theatre yesterday evening under the sponsorship of the Victoria Kiwanis Club.

The production under Dorothy Somerset as producer and Dr. D. C. B. Duff as art director was most competently handled and in harmony with the traditions of the piece. But it was interesting to note the reactions to this rich old museum piece on the part of a modern audience.

Despite the really fine work of the members of the cast, yawning spread like an infection in the house. Many obligingly laughed when they were supposed to laugh, but the representatives of this generation there yesterday evening most certainly did not greet this incomparable farce with the constant roars of laughter to which their forefathers were moved.

Inured to realism, this modern audience condescended to tolerance. It permitted itself to be amused not so much by the comedy's inherent humor, but by its quaintness on modern standards. There was obvious that superior feeling arising from the mood of "So this is the obvious kind of stuff they used to laugh at." All this, however, was the loss of that part of the audience incapable of making the imaginative effort.

But viewed as a production, it was an admirable piece of work, even judged by the high standards set by the Players' Club through its lengthening record of performance. It must have been something of an undertaking for students of today to absorb the heavily worded lines of Goldsmith. Listening to this play one realizes how great has been the change even in the meaning of common English words in a couple of centuries. But these eighteenth century lines of "She Stoops" with their polished circumspection and words with now somewhat archaic meanings, flowed unhaltingly and expressively yesterday evening from the lips of the young persons on the bright side of the footlights, as they projected themselves backward into the manners and atmosphere of another century.

In contributing to the general success of this the members of the cast were uniformly efficient. Diana Drabble, '36, played Kate Hardcastle; Hugh Palmer, '36, was Young Marlow; Adella Thurber, '36, Mrs. Hardcastle; Ludlow Beamish, '37, Mr. Hardcastle; Fred Hobson, '37, Tony; Audrey Phillips, '37, Constance Neville; David Fulton, '36, Hastings.

The others in the cast were: Jim Beveridge, '36, Sam Rodden, '37, George Johnston, '36, Monty Frothingham, '36, as the fellows at the alehouse; Graham Darling, '36, as landlord of the alehouse; Jim Beveridge, '36, as Digory; Sam Rodden as Roger; Monty Frothingham and Darling as the servants; Eunice Alexander, '36, as Pimpie; George Johnston as Young Marlow's servant, and Arthur Sager as Sir Charles Marlow. The men were particularly good in the leading roles. The leading women were equally capable as regards acting, but their enunciation and speaking voices were, with exceptions, not in harmony with the general standard of the production and the intelligence of the care lavished on its other aspects.

The costume was a delightful feature of the performance. Full advantage was taken of the possibilities of design and color afforded by the eighteenth century styles with their bustles and hoops for the women and lace and ruffles for the men.

Hugh Palmer is president of the Players' Club this year and those who worked on the executive and committee to put over the production included: Amy Seed, '37, Hazel Wright, '36, Eleanor Gibson, '37, Leslie A. Allen, '37, Ludlow Beamish, '37, John Davidson, '37, Albert Morton, '36, and William Robertson, '36. The local Kiwanis University Players' committees functioning under Kenneth Ferguson as general chairman, were: Tickets, G. H. Stevens, chairman; Harold Hinton, Ed. Mallek, Fred McGregor, A. C. Stickley; advertising, Rowan W. MacKenzie, chairman; Hugh Allan, Edwin Dickinson, W. A. Patterson; accommodation, Ralph D. Matthews, chairman; Austin I. Curtis, J. J. Hickey; transportation, A. Victor King, chairman; Leonard Batchelor, Harry J. M. Curry; properties, Arthur Dowell, chairman; Donald MacIsaac, Rich M. Williams; entertainment, Will A. Loney, chairman; Rev. E. F. Church, B. C. Nicholas, J. W. Spencer and Dr. S. J. Willis.

BEAUX ARTS PLAN ANNUAL PLAY

The executive members of the Beaux-Arts held a meeting last evening at the home of Miss Constance Hobbs, Beach Drive. Ted Simmonds, president, was in the chair.

Plans for the next general meeting to be held in the clubroom at the Crystal Garden, May 28, were discussed, and a very interesting social evening will be in store for the members and their friends.

Considerable discussion centered around the club's annual three-act play, which is being directed by Major Bullock-Webster. This year the club has chosen a comedy entitled "At Mrs. Beam's," by C. K. Munroe, which will be produced May 18 in the Shrine Auditorium, in aid of the Sunshine Camp.

At the conclusion of the meeting refreshments were served by the hostess and ladies.

ENGLISH BOYS MAKING TOUR

D. S. Wedderburn Here to Arrange For Visit of Public Schools Group June 2

A party of English public school boys will arrive in Victoria on June 2 on a tour of Canada. It was announced at the Empress Hotel today by David Strymeyer Wedderburn, advance representative.

The group, which will arrive in Montreal by the liner Duchess of Bedford on May 16, will be in charge of Capt. W. H. Stevenson, assistant master of Harrow School.

The object of the tour, said Mr. Wedderburn, is to give the boys an opportunity of seeing Canadian life and gaining first-hand impressions of the Dominion. The average age of the boys, who have just reached the end of their school careers, is eighteen years. They are at an age when they are most capable of receiving lasting impressions and the greatest benefit from personal experience.

SOME MAY SETTLE
Some of them may eventually settle in Canada, but the majority will be taking up work in England, and the knowledge gained on the tour will enable them to view Canadian questions with that sympathetic understanding which is so necessary between members of the British Commonwealth of nations, said Mr. Wedderburn.

The boys, he said, are looking forward with great interest to the experience in front of them and to meeting representatives of a people for whose achievement in building up the Dominion of Canada they have the greatest admiration.

Two similar tours have previously visited Canada, while others have gone to Australia, New Zealand, South and East Africa, India and the West Indies.

The members of the party on the present tour are: H. J. Budd (Eltham), M. H. Ferne and J. H. Ruscoe (Tonbridge), R. Straker (Redale), R. P. Carter, W. H. Gardiner, D. C. Keen, F. E. W. Tetley, G. H. S. Toller, E. R. Yates and G. P. Yarrow (Harrow).

They will be in Victoria from June 2 to 7.
Mr. Wedderburn flew over from Vancouver this morning, and he plans to fly back from Seattle to New York to meet the party when it arrives in Montreal.

A friend of Major Maurice Trew, director of the Fairbridge Farm School at Cowichan Station, Mr. Wedderburn got in touch with him this morning by long distance telephone.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The parents' committee of the St. Paul's Scout troop will hold a bidge and whist party in the scout's hall, Requinait, this evening at 8.30 o'clock.

Repairs to five swings in the Requinait Memorial Park at an estimated cost of $40 were ordered by the municipal council last night.

Accounts totaling $13,603.44 were ordered paid by the Requinait Council last night. The annual percentage addition by-law was finally passed.

A joint meeting of the Requinait council and school board to make arrangements for the annual Victoria Day school sports will be arranged by Reeve Lockley.

Motions by Alderman J. D. Hunter, requesting special grants from the provincial and federal governments and Victoria, were tabled until the next meeting of the City Council by that body yesterday.

The Requinait police department will be notified by the municipal council to take action to keep children out of the disused chemical works on Head Street. The council was advised last night the premises were in dangerous condition.

A meeting of the Greater Victoria Horsehoe Pitching Association will be held tomorrow evening in Rennie and Taylor's Bakery at 8 o'clock. Entry forms will be received and the summer schedule drawn up. All members are asked to turn out.

The weekly card party of the Victoria West Liberal Club will be held this evening in the clubrooms, 414 Skinner Street. Prizes will be given and refreshments served. All Liberals and friends are invited to attend.

The sixtieth anniversary of the First Baptist Church will be observed tomorrow evening beginning at 6.30 o'clock in the church hall. A short ceremony, supper and a number of musical selections will make up the programme.

Walter James Colvin was fined $25 when he pleaded guilty in the City Police Court this morning on a charge of driving to the common danger. He was also fined $6 for failing to carry a current year's driving license.

Thomas Erickson was sentenced to two months' imprisonment when he pleaded guilty in the City Police Court this morning on a charge of supplying an intoxicant, rubbing alcohol, to an Indian. He altered his plea after pleading not guilty yesterday morning.

A petition was received by the Requinait Council last night from unemployed in this district requesting the scale be raised to that in effect in Victoria. The matter was referred to the finance committee for a report on the exact cost which would have to be borne by the municipality.

A special committee of the Victoria Ministerial Association was appointed at a meeting Monday to help in arrangements for the Sunday evening summer services on the show of the John Howard Society in British Columbia, spoken on "The English Boreal System." Rev. C. G. MacKenzie presided.

The presentation of trophies and prizes won in the city chess tournament staged by the Victoria Chess Club took place Friday evening in the clubrooms, 1118 Langley Street. L. Partington, who won the city championship, was presented with the Tourist Trade Development Association Cup and a miniature trophy. K. S. Patrick, runner-up, was given a chess book and a pipe set. J. Robinson, winner of the B class, received a chess book and a six-month membership. F. A. Payzant, second in the B class, was given a smoker stand. Refreshments were served.

In accordance with the arrangements with the Victoria Day celebration committee the sale of admission tickets for the hospitals and the Solarium Victoria Day sports and race meeting at the Willows Park on May 25, at 3 p.m., will start tomorrow, Wednesday, May 6. HEAR PLAYERS AT LUNCHEON

Kiwanis Clubs Entertains Members of U.B.C. Cast of "She Stoops to Conquer"

Members of the University of British Columbia Players' Club, who last night presented "She Stoops to Conquer" at the Royal Victoria Theatre under the sponsorship of the Kiwanis Club, were guests of the club at an informal luncheon at the Empress Hotel today.

Members of the players' organization attending the luncheon were: Miss Dorothy Jeffery, Adella Thurber, Diana Drabble, Eunice Alexander, Hugh Palmer, David Fulton, Jim Beveridge, Monty Frothingham, George Johnston, Ludlow Beamish, Bill Sargent, Fred Hobson and Graham Darling.

Miss Jeffery, who is a member of the advisory committee of the Players' Club, told briefly how the club's annual tour was designed to bring the university into closer contact with the outside province.

Bill Sargent, who was stage manager of last night's performance, said he believed the performance here was the best given in the tour, which had included Vancouver, Courtenay and Qualicum.

PRESIDENT TELLS AIMS
Hugh Palmer, president of the club this year, spoke briefly of the organization's aims and objects.

Miss Thurber and Mr. Hobson, the latter the only Victorian member of the cast, contributed recitations.

The players were introduced by Kenneth Ferguson.

DATE OF POLL TO BE FIXED

Omineca By-election First With Burrard Later May Be Plan

With the return of Premier Pattullo from Ottawa, probably at the end of this week, the machinery will be set in motion for the provincial by-election in Omineca, according to speculation in political circles.

It is forecast the Omineca poll will be held June 22, with nominations the previous week, June 15 or 16. Premier Pattullo is expected to announce the date within the next week or two.

Candidates of the different parties have not been officially chosen yet. The likely Liberal choice is Mark M. Connelly, manager of the Fraser Lake Sawmills Ltd. The C.C.F. will run a strong candidate, but as far as is known here Conservative plans are uncertain. The main fight in the by-election, which is to fill the seat in the Legislature vacated by Mr. Justice A. M. Manson, will be between the Liberals and C.C.F., according to advance reports.

Plans for the Burrard poll are indefinite as yet and there is said to be a likelihood that the by-election there will not be held the same day as Omineca, as was originally suggested. Because Vancouver will be in the middle of its jubilee celebration in July and August the poll in Burrard may be postponed until as late as September.

Under the special by-elections bill passed at the last session neither of the votes have to be held until the fall, although the understanding was given they would be brought on as soon as practical.

Fireworks For May 24 Are Set

Two sets of fireworks, one for a daylight display following the crowning of the May Queen, will give Victorians their pyrotechnic shille as the city observes Victoria Day on May 25.

The daylight fireworks will include two seven inch thunder and lightning salutes, two ten inch thunder and lightning salutes and a dozen fourteen and one-half inch assorted daylight shells, including six comic figures on parachutes, two strings of flags on parachutes, two "around the world airplane" shells, two smoke signals and Canadian flags, two eighteen and one-half inch Canadian flags on parachute shells and two British flags of the same size on parachute shells.

NIGHT DISPLAY
In the night display, which will follow immediately the military tattoo played by the Fifth Brigade on the lawn of the Empress Hotel, certain special attractions have been added to the usual programme.

One of the special features will be a portrait of the late Queen Victoria, 300 feet in area. Six big "silver fountains" especially equipped to float on the water while burning, have been added to a programme previously complete in setting off rockets, aerial salutes, kaleidoscopic displays, comets, aerial bouquets and "flying Gardens of Babylon" and innumerable other pieces.

Chapter's Tea—Camosun Chapter I.O.D.E. will hold a silver tea tomorrow afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock at the home of Mrs. E. H. King, 1041 Craigdarroch Road. A cordial invitation is extended to all members and friends of the chapter.

MUCH PRODUCE ARRIVES HERE

Wholesalers Unload Fruit and Vegetables; New Potatoes on Market

Over 100 tons of produce were unloaded on wholesale lot today. Shipments from the M. Pacific Enterprise included:

Two carloads of bananas from Central America.
One and one-half carloads of lettuce from California.
A mixed lot of green peas, artichokes, green peppers and beets from California.
One carload of grapefruit from California.
And one carload of lemons from California.

Shafter white new potatoes are now selling on the local market at reasonable prices. These potatoes are of large size and good quality. They are retailing for 7 cents a pound despite the duty.

Local asparagus is now taking care of the city demand though a small shipment from Kamloops was brought in a few days ago. The price for this table delicacy remains the same.

Another shipment of cantaloupes from California is expected here next week.

Vancouver, May 5.—Charles O. Emerson, sixty-nine, retired investment broker, died at his home here yesterday.

Formerly of Denver, Colo., where he was connected with the investment firm of Kleek and Bacon, he came to this city in 1918 and was associated with the Rand and Fowler Investment Company until his retirement a few years ago.

No Withdrawing, Says Henderson

"Disgraceful" Charge to Be Pushed to a Finish, He Tells Appeal Justices

Attorney-General Sloan, appearing personally as crown counsel opposing the appeal of the three George brothers, Indians, against their sentence of death for killing Constable Gibson on the Canford Reserve two years ago, today came to the defence of Chief Justice Morrison of the Supreme Court, whose conduct as trial judge presiding over the murder trials had been attacked as "disgraceful" by Stuart Henderson, chief defence counsel for the Indians.

"There is nothing that in the slightest degree bears out the charge that Chief Justice Morrison conducted the trial in a disgraceful manner," said the Attorney-General. "As to the charge that Chief Justice Morrison and Crown counsel were in a cabal and deliberately conspired together to change the judge's charge to the jury, I can only say it is untrue and unfounded."

The Attorney-General supported Chief Justice Morrison's written explanation regarding the editing of the verbatim report of the charge to the jury before the transcript of it was completed for the records.

The Attorney-General said only two places in 1,000 pages of evidence had been pointed to for support of the charges made by Mr. Henderson against Chief Justice Morrison.

Asked by Chief Justice Macdonald of the Court of Appeal whether he would withdraw the "disgraceful" charge against Chief Justice Morrison, Mr. Henderson replied:

"I withdraw nothing. Any decision your lordships have to make in this case is on a basis of my denial of this withdrawal. I am going to call this witness to a finish."

Mr. Henderson—"I have made a statement as I see it, the truth is not for me to say nice things just to get by. I'm not going out to make a fool of myself."

Mr. Justice MacQuarrie—"We do not ask you to make a fool of yourself, but to be sensible."

The verbal "fireworks" between the lawyers and the justice went on for several minutes, with a court stenographer taking down every word for the record to go before the Supreme Court of Canada later.

Attorney-General Sloan declared that if attacks such as Mr. Henderson's on Chief Justice Morrison were allowed to continue without comment and without rebuke from the bench, then "it will not be long before the people lose confidence in the integrity of our courts."

Mr. Justice Martin pointed out that on the part of some of the justices there had been a complete misapprehension of Mr. Henderson's position and he urged that the Attorney-General proceed with the presentation of his argument. Mr. Sloan then launched on his detailed consideration of Chief Justice Morrison's printed charge to the master jury in Vancouver last October.

FLY CASTERS WILL COMPETE

Vancouver Island Fishermen Will Participate in Shawnaig Competition

Fly casters from all over the island will compete at Shawnaig Lake during the last week in June, in the Vancouver Island Fly Casting championship. Jim Price, manager of the Cobble Hill Hotel, has donated the trophy for the event. Other miniature trophies will be given.

A committee of anglers will be formed to manage competition and rules for the event will be drawn up in the near future. In future years good gatherings of fishers have been in evidence for this affair, which will require all of one's skill to come out the winner.

Fishing is still good at the lake and several limit baskets have been secured. Wilson and Lenfesty reported this morning that the Lower Campbell Lakes were producing good fish for trout. Spruce Lake and rivers are high at present, but clear. Fishing in the lake is good. The Royal Coastman fish is landing trout in Taylor River. The Rainbow trout being caught there weigh as high as four pounds, residents say. Steelhead are numerous in Stamp River.

ONE YEAR FOR NORMAN LORD

Former Civic Employee Sent to Jail For Theft of $4,743 From City

Norman H. Lord, former road and poll tax collector for the city, was sentenced to one year's imprisonment by Magistrate Jay in the City Police Court this morning on a charge of stealing $4,743 from the Corporation of the City of Victoria.

Lord pleaded guilty to the charge yesterday and the case was remanded until this morning for sentence.

In passing judgment the court made little comment on the case. "I have considered this case carefully since yesterday," Magistrate Jay said, "and there is this fact that cannot be overlooked. You were employed in a position of confidence and trust in the collection of public money. You are sentenced to one year."

Lord was charged as a result of shortages in his collections from July last year, until January this year, when he was dismissed from the civic service after informing the city comptroller he could not produce receipts for his collections as required by the city auditors.

Stuart Henderson appeared for the defendant.

CIVIC AID IS SOUGHT

Provincial Help For Next Year's Budget; Try to Negotiate Relief Loans

Assistance from the provincial government for municipal finances, promised for the fall session of the Legislature, will not apply until the 1937 budgets of the cities and cannot be taken into account in preparation of 1936 tax rates.

This was made clear at the Legislative Buildings this morning as the City Council prepared to renew representations to Hon. John Hart, Minister of Finance, for aid in preventing an increase in the Victoria tax rate this year.

A conference with Mr. Hart has been arranged for tomorrow. The city, according to its latest budget draft, faces an increase of $300,000 in taxation unless some changes are made.

While it cannot, in view of the provincial declaration, expect direct assistance from the province this year, there is still a possibility of aid from another direction, it was indicated this morning.

The provincial government still has hopes of obtaining advances from Ottawa which will enable the treasury to extend loans to municipalities to cover their share of relief costs.

If this is successfully negotiated, Victoria could remove some $120,000 from its current tax levy.

Twenty-minute Parking Urged

Chief Heatley Receives Support For Proposed Traffic Regulation

Twenty-minute parallel parking between Figard and Fort on Douglas Street, and between Douglas and Government on View Street, as proposed by Police Chief Thomas Heatley, received the approval of the Chamber of Commerce and the Credit Granters' Association, at a luncheon meeting today.

D. Miller, president of the Retail Merchants' Association of the Chamber of Commerce, and chairman of the luncheon, asked George I. Warren to look into the matter and see about forming a committee to work with the chief.

The police chief, who spoke at the combined luncheon of the two organizations, also mentioned the fact that he was trying to get another traffic light at the intersection of Blanchard and Yates. In the theatre zone, this was one of the busiest corners in the city, he said.

He would also like to have another light at the intersection at Government and Johnson Streets, which he described as a dangerous crossing, but said he would be satisfied with one light this year.

"Businessmen seem to think that because there are lots of cars in front of their stores, they are doing a lot of business, but I say that they are building a wall in front of their stores, and keeping other people who want to do business with them away," Chief Heatley said. "They are making a garage of the street."

Double parking was another result of angle parking, the chief said. People could not be blamed for it because in many cases trucks had to unload and there were no lanes here, as in other cities. Angle parking also caused congestion at the traffic lights.

"Victoria is the only city of its size in Canada which allows angle parking in its main business area," Chief Heatley declared. "Vancouver did away with it six months ago."

POOR PA

BY CLAUDE CALLAN

"Our oldest boys wasted the money I gave them when they left home so I'm goin' to handle Junior different.
I'm just goin' to give him an alarm clock."

AUNT HET

BY ROBERT QUILLER

"Any wrong. She speaks
so sharp all the time that Ben don't notice it when she is bawlin' him out."

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—Should a man do part of the housework when his wife works, too? I have a beauty shop and stand on my feet working all day long, for I have a good trade. My husband works six hours in a shop five days a week. He is perfectly willing to help me about the house and take the heavy tasks off me, as I am not strong. It is all right with us, but we have a friend who criticizes me very severely for letting my husband help me. He says it isn't a man's place to cook and scrub and he shouldn't help with the housework. Is he right, or am I right in expecting my husband to help me when I work for our living, too, especially as he is big and strong and I am frail and delicate?

A WORKING WIFE.

Answer—The business wife and the domestic wife have an entirely different status in the home. If a husband entirely supports the home and the wife has nothing to do except to keep the house, and if she is well and strong, her husband has a right to expect her to do all of the housework, and not to demand that he shall bring home the bacon and fry it, too.

But when a wife works outside of the home and helps to support it, the situation is entirely changed. She has a right to expect her husband to share in the housework inasmuch as she shares in the home upkeep. When the wife toils all day at counter or desk, it is certainly unfair of her husband to lay upon her shoulders all the burden of the housework while he sits around in idleness.

No man who has any affection for his wife, or even any sense of justice, would do such a thing. Yet I am sorry to say that it is a very common thing for the husbands of business women to do. During the depression we have all had many occasions to witness the spectacle of big, strong, husky men loafing around pool rooms and standing for hours listening to the radio report of games, while their poor, tired wives hurried home from their work to add another day's toil to the labor they had already performed by cooking dinner, and after dinner doing the cleaning and scrubbing and washing that they had not had time to do before they left for work in the morning, and which their lordly husbands had left for them to do.

Doubtless it was not these men's fault that they had lost their jobs. Probably they would have been glad to have gone back to their old positions if they could. But, as this was impossible, and the burden of supporting the family was thrown on the wife's shoulders, one would have thought that the least they could do would have been to lighten her load by doing the housework. But no, they scorned that. That was woman's work. Though why it is any more shameful for a man to do a woman's work than it is for a woman to do a man's work, nobody knows.

Fair play is fair play, and if the wife helps earn the living the husband should help do the housework. He honors himself in doing so. It is only the unsophisticated who think that there is anything demeaning to a man's dignity in doing so-called woman's work.

Many of the most famous men in the world are prouder of their cooking than they are of any other achievements. If you have ever been on any man's boat you know that they can polish brass and scrub and clean is nobody's business.

Anyway, what a husband and wife do to help each other is their own affair, strictly between them and any one is strangely lacking in good sense who interferes in the matter. And you might as well tell your money neighbor this the next time he tries to stop a good husband from helping out a poor delicate little wife who is working herself to death to try to help her husband get a start in the world.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am a plain, quiet single woman seventy years old. In my youth I had quite a number of proposals of marriage, but none of them appealed to me and I had settled down contentedly to single blessedness. But about two years ago I got acquainted with an exceptionally handsome man of forty who was much my own age. Am I wrong to think of such a thing at my age? Will he discard me later for being too old? I have a fear of the future, although we both love. But what to do is my problem.

Answer—Don't. Such a marriage would be the quintessence of folly. There is not one chance in a million that it would not end in heartbreak and disaster for you.

I do not know your circumstances, but it does not need a prophesist to tell you that you must be comfortably situated, probably rich, and that this man is seeking to marry you for what you have. For men of forty never marry women of seventy except for money. That is a hard thing to say and harder to listen to, but it is the truth that you must face. And, anyway, when a woman is your age she is too old to marry any one. She has lost the adaptability of youth, and she cannot adjust herself to the moods and habits of a husband. She is set in her own ways and they mean more to her than anything else in life. If she has lived alone, as you have done, she doesn't want a man around cluttering up things. He is a nuisance in the house.

You are flattered, as a woman might be, at feeling that you still have the power to attract men and that a man of forty has passed over all the pretty girls for you. Enjoy your little flirtation, but don't make a tragedy of it by marrying him.

Uncle Wiggily and the Keyhole

By HOWARD R. GARIS

When Uncle Wiggily, as I told you in the story last week, was coming home through the dark woods, hearing Buster's toy engine and seeing many voices shouting, he knew at once what it was. "The Bad Chase!" whispered the rabbit gentleman. He looked around for some place to hide, but it was so dark he couldn't find one. He started to run, but he couldn't go very fast carrying Buster's engine.

"Buster," said Uncle Wiggily to himself as he rushed feet and the shouting voices sounded nearer and nearer. "If I run and hop fast I'll spill the water from Buster's fire engine. That would make me all wet and I might catch cold." So he didn't run and soon the three Bad Chases, the Fox, the Wolf and the Bob Cat, had caught him. The Fox and Wolf took hold of Uncle Wiggily, one on each side, and the Bob Cat reached for his ears. They held him fast.

"Yes, but I haven't seen him go in the toy store you fellows wouldn't have known he was around here," said the Wolf.

"True enough," snapped the Fox. "But if I hadn't heard him say he was coming back this way we wouldn't have known where to hide and catch him."

"Anyhow, now we have him, what shall we do with him?" asked the Bob Cat, twiddling his whiskers.

"Take him to den," whispered the Wolf. "We can talk about it there."

"Oh, please let me go, gentlemen," begged Uncle Wiggily, being very polite indeed, to call the Bad Chases "gentlemen," which by no means they were. "Let me go, I beg of you."

"No!" snarled the Wolf. "Away with him to my den!"

So they started to take Uncle Wiggily away.

"What's this thing he's carrying?" asked the Fox.

"That's Buster's toy fire engine," said Uncle Wiggily. "Please don't take it away from me."

"Let him keep it," snarled the Wolf. "As long as it isn't too fat to eat. Now come on, I beg of you."

So they rushed Uncle Wiggily to the Wolf's den.

"Now we have him here, what shall we do with him?" asked the Fox.

"Look him in my kitchen," said the Wolf. "We'll sit down in the parlor and talk about who shall have the first nibbles off this rabbit."

So they put Uncle Wiggily in the Wolf's kitchen, but when they went to lock the back door there was no key to be found.

"Never mind," snarled the Bob Cat. "I'll sit outside on the kitchen steps. He can't get past me even if the door isn't locked. You two talk things over in front while I guard the back door."

SEES BOB CAT SMOKING

So that's how it happened. Uncle Wiggily, in the kitchen with Buster's toy engine, could hear the Wolf and Fox talking about him. The rabbit didn't look through the keyhole and could see the glow of the cigar the Bob Cat, sitting on the steps, was smoking.

"Ha!" chuckled Uncle Wiggily. "The Bob Cat's cigar is on fire. I have a fire

HOROSCOPE

"The stars incline, but do not compel"

WEDNESDAY, MAY 6, 1936

Conflicting planetary aspects are active today, according to astrologers. In the early morning hours unrest and discontent may be prevalent in many places.

Women are likely to be exceedingly sensitive to adverse influences and may seek to gain their aims through deceitful means. A few may be deceived by a man of love affairs, new or old.

Under this configuration a sense of injustice may lead many persons to be petulant, for those who prosper will appear to have been unfairly treated against many of life's ills.

Revelations regarding political corruption and various methods of administering public business are promulgated, but they will have only slight effect.

This is a fortunate day for sailing on a long cruise or for starting important journeys. Summer tours will be marked by unusual experiences and will attract great numbers of travelers.

Late today there is a sign promising to industry and especially to trained workers. The seers continue to warn the young that success depends largely on the cultivation of special talents.

Owing to the widespread extent of popular education it is necessary for ambitious young folks to develop gifts that are unusual if they would win rapid recognition. The moon today is in Scorpio, a sign that encourages firmness of will, self-control and a natural resourcefulness. For most reasons it is a first rate time to make plans.

A year of real progress in business affairs. Shorter persons may be helped to many women. Children born on this day may be of extremely sensitive nature. Subjects of this sign usually have great energy and make unusual fame.

Robert A. Peary, Arctic explorer, was born on this day, 1856. Others who have celebrated it include Cecil W. Underwood, senator, 1923, and Philander C. Ketchum, 1923.

VANCOUVER CELEBRATION

Montreal, May 5 (Canadian Press).—Sir Edward Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, has consented to open Vancouver's Golden Jubilee celebrations July 1.

Mayor O. G. McCrear of the coast city made the announcement yesterday.
